Jurors Hear 7 Witnesses In First 2 Hours

Report Expected by Mid-Afternoon In Inquiry Into Discrepancies In Three Accounts; Court Urges Indictments "If Facts Warrant."

BULLETIN

As this afternoon's session of the grand jury investigation opened, indications were that the jury's report might not be submitted until tomorrow, although the prosecutor's office had hoped to complete the session this afternoon. Assistant Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz said the delay was due to a last-minute case that came onto the docket and the fact that examination of witnesses in the other cases was requiring more time than anticipated.

A county grand jury of 11 men and four women opened an investigation this morning of defalcations totaling at least $8,600 in the accounts of three public employes in Mansfield and Richland county, all of whom have resigned or been discharged.

Without a hitch, the jurors began their inquiry at 9:30 a. m. after Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston in a lengthy charge, advised them that "it is your duty to thoroughly investigate these reports of discrepancies, and if the facts warrant, return indictments against those guilty of crime."

Scheduled for investigation first by the jury was a shortage of $2,698 in the accounts of A. F. Marvin, former Plymouth village clerk. Two other shortage cases were due for hearing next, and then four non-support, breaking and entering and auto theft cases were to be considered by the jurors.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said the session should require but a few hours and predicted the jury would be ready to report by mid-afternoon.

Only seven witnesses had testified when the jury recessed for lunch at noon. Four of them were called in the shortage cases, including County Treasurer John E. Kolb and Miss Lena Zay, in the Mansfield conservancy tax shortage, and Mayor J. T. Gaskell and Leonard Wise, village solicitor, of Plymouth, in a probe of a shortage of $2,698 in the Plymouth clerk's accounts.

PASS $100,000

Receipts In Real Estate Tax Collection Pile Up.

County real estate tax receipts passed the $100,000 mark today in what deputy treasurers described as a "good collection."

Yesterday's receipts totaling $9,606 boosted the collections to $101,588 since the books opened Feb. 20. Collections of personal tax were slow, with receipts amounting to less than $600 in the first two days of the collection period.

Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck completed an abstract today showing that schools will receive $601,796 from the year's tax collections, nearly half of the total charge of $1,505,511. Cities and villages will get $286,795, the county $209,748, and the townships, $79,737.

Taxes will be collected on a total valuation of $60,672,550, which includes real estate valued at $65,-$06,130 and public utilities appraised at $14,706,420.

ALLOTS $10,800 IN RELIEF FUNDS

State Distribution for County Expected to Be of Little Help in Dilemma Here.

Richland county today had been allotted $10,862 as its share of $1,250,000 in February relief funds distributed by the state to 35 distressed counties—but the money was expected to be of little help in relieving the current relief dilemma of the city and the rest of the county.

Dispatches from Columbus said that the $1,250,000 represented the entire amount the state is permitted to spend for February under provisions of the $5,000,000 emergency relief bill.

Actual needs for the 35 counties as estimated by the welfare department were $1,830,726. Certifications were reduced by a blanket ratio to conform with the maximum monthly distribution authorized by the legislature.

CLASH IN ROOMING HOUSE

Policeman Fires Two Shots as Assailant Flees Down West Fourth Street.

Ignoring injuries he received during a hand-to-hand fight with an alleged check forger at a west side rooming house last night, Detective Lee J. Remy, veteran police officer today sought to pick up the trail of his six-foot assailant who escaped following their tussle.

Remy said the man, hatless, fled east on West Fourth street, as he fired two shots from his service revolver.

The encounter took place at 331 West Fourth street last evening as Remy sought to arrest the man for allegedly passing two bogus checks here yesterday.

Waits at Rooming House.

The officer, suffering from a cut chin, a sprained finger and bruised knee, said he had been notified by Capt. John Miller that the suspect was expected at the rooming house at 7 or 8 p. m. and that he had gone there to wait for him. It was shortly after 7 that the roomer appeared.

As Remy sought to handcuff him to bring him to police headquarters, the suspect turned on the officer and struck him in the face. They struggled then in the hallway.

Fires In Air.

Remy related that he was dragged to the porch by the larger man where the suspect finally broke loose and started down the street. His assailant fled east to Benton street where he turned south.

"I saw that he was getting away from me as I chased him down the street," Remy said. "I fired two shots in the air as he

MAYOR OUSTED

Miami Executive, Two Cabinet Members Voted Out.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Voting citizens tallied today a nearly 4 to 1 ouster of Mayor Robert R. Williams and two city commissioners.

Unofficial returns on yesterday's recall election gave decisive majorities against the mayor, Commissioners John W. Dubose and Ralph B. Ferguson.

The recall vote came after a year-long fight. The officials formed a control bloc in municipal affairs. In recent months, political storms buffeted them, culminated in charges of incompetence.

The recall movement began a year ago after the three officials were indicted on charges of soliciting a $250,000 bribe from the Florida Power and Light company to settle an electric rate case out of court.

Calls Educational System In America a 'National Disgrace'

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Harper Swift, professor of education at the University of California, declared today that the United States' educational system was "a national disgrace."

"Public education in the United States has never been universal, democratic, or free," he asserted in an address prepared for the American association of school administrators.

"Thousands of closed schools, public schools charging tuition, tens of thousands of unpaid teachers, nearly three million children without schools, this is the appalling picture of education in the United States not only in years of economic depression but in years of great prosperity."

Swift said in 1930 more than four per cent "of our adult population was illiterate, but in England only slightly more than 3-10 of one per cent, in Germany 3-100 of one per cent, and in Norway 1-1000 of one per cent."

He advocated "systems of national aid" as in France and England and [illegible] conditions which led to national aid "are similar to conditions which have existed in the United States."

L. John Nuttall, ... tendent of schools in ... City, Utah, said that ... ness bargains for a fair ... education, leaders in ... should know what is n... make sure that the basic ... education will be attained.

Rural Teachers, Payless 4 Months, to Get Checks

$99,000 Fund Sent Richland County Paves Way to Pay Bloominggrove Instructors, Bus Drivers Too.

Teachers in the Bloominggrove township schools who have taught without pay since Nov. 17 were due to get most of their back salary today with the receipt of $99,373 in state school funds by Mansfield and Richland county schools.

The Bloominggrove district will get $1,322 in the distribution of funds, and Hilas Jenney, clerk of the school board, said that amount would pay a large part of the back salary of the township's four teachers.

Drivers to Be Paid.

Bus drivers will get $300 of the allocation, he said, for transporting pupils to the four one-room schools in the township district.

Today's distribution of state funds is the first in 1939 and represents the quarterly share of foundation money. The county's rural schools received $53,360 and Mansfield schools, $46,013.

E. N. Dietrich, state education director, who authorized the allocation, said the funds may be used for current operating expenses, although most of the districts have issued notes against the state funds. Mansfield schools are in debt $95,000, of which $45,000 was issued against state money.

The Madison township schools will receive $11,434, the largest share of the county distribution. Bellville will get $6,439; Butler village, $5,781; Lexington, $5,637; Union rural district, $5,112; Springfield township, $4,569, and Plymouth village district, $3,319.

The state department advised the city and county school districts they will receive a total of $420,372 from the state foundation program this year. That will include $213,440 for the rural schools and $206,932 to Mansfield schools.

WOODARD GETS SUSPENSION AS PEN'S WARDEN

Barred From Job 30 Days as Result of Investigation in Liquor, Narcotics.

SEEN AS OUSTER MOVE

Sherwood's Action Held to Be First Step to Remove Veteran Official.

COLUMBUS—Warden James C. Woodard of Ohio Penitentiary today was suspended for 30 days, effective immediately. Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood named William F. Amrine acting warden.

Woodard's suspension was regarded as the first step by Sherwood to remove the veteran prison head, who has been warden for four years and who had served as deputy warden 20 years before that.

Headed Prison Farm.

Amrine, who conducted an investigation of the century-old prison at Sherwood's request, formerly headed the London prison farm. He recently was named state superintendent of correction.

Woodard's suspension had been rumored since [illegible] and uncovered supporting reports that favoritism was shown to some convicts and that liquor and narcotics were bootlegged to prisoners.

It was just four years ago that Woodard was elevated to the wardenship after former Gov. Martin L. Davey suspended Warden Preston E. Thomas on charges of mismanagement.

The notice of suspension, handed to Woodard shortly before noon by Amrine in the prison office, said:

"During the suspension period you will have no access to the office of warden. All official keys for the office and for the files should be turned over to Mr. Amrine at once."

Threatens To Fight.

Warden Woodard had said that he would oppose any attempt to remove him from the position he has held since Feb. 27, 1935, by former Governor Martin L. Davey. He succeeded Preston E. Thomas who had resigned under pressure about a month earlier.

The current investigation was conducted personally by Amrine. His reports to the welfare director have not been made public.

Woodard became a storekeeper in the prison in 1909 and later became a deputy warden, serving in that capacity under three wardens.

Sacred College Makes Decision On Third Ballot

New Head of Catholic Church Elected On His 63rd Birthday; Will Take Name of Pope Pius XII; Election One of Quickest In History.

(By Associated Press)

VATICAN CITY—Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli today was elected 262nd Pope of the Holy Roman church on his 63rd birthday and assumed the name of Pius XII.

The name under which the new Pontiff will be spiritual ruler of 331,500,000 Catholics was assumed in recognition of his succession to Pope Pius XI, to whom he was papal secretary of state.

The election of the eminent Italian cardinal on the third ballot of the first day of the conclave's voting was without precedent in the modern history of the church.

Not since 1623, when Benedict XV was chosen, had a conclave acted so promptly.

The new Pontiff has a thorough knowledge of the church in the United States, where he was a visitor in October and November, 1936.

The date of his coronation will be announced later.

The election of Pope Pius XII shattered another tradition in that rarely has a secretary of state to the preceding Pope been elevated to the papal seat.

Before the conclave opened Cardinal Pacelli was reported to be the favorite of the 27 [illegible] cardinals because he was believed to be best qualified to continue the policies of Pius XI, who died [illegible]

[illegible] his predecessor, the new Pope selected the same name.

New Pope Gives Blessing.

Pius XII imparted his first papal benediction from the central balcony of St. Peter's to a widely cheering throng shortly after the announcement of his election.

The crowd burst into a tremendous ovation as his holiness came forward to the balustrade and silently gazed down.

"Viva Il Papa!" the spectators roared. Handkerchiefs and hats were waved from thousands of hands.

The pontiff let the ovation continue for some minutes; then he

Hits Plan To Divert Gas Tax Funds At County Road Meeting

J. R. Thomas, Hayesville, president of the Ohio Trustees association, told township trustees of Richland county at their annual meeting at First Methodist Episcopal church this morning that the passage of pending legislation to divert road money to relief purposes would impair and cripple the road program.

He referred to a bill before the Ohio house which would permit diversion of tax money from gasoline and license plates for relief purposes. While it would help to clarify the relief problem in townships and counties, it would hopelessly cripple road building and maintenance, he said.

The annual meeting was opened at 10 a. m. today by Howard Sword, county engineer and chairman of the meeting. Motion pictures were shown on stabilization of secondary roads and an open discussion was led by John Selby.

State legislation provides for the road meeting each year in counties, but this year's session was expected to become largely a relief session. Joseph T. Ferguson, state auditor, and O. P. Van Schoik, chief relief examiners, who were scheduled to speak, were unable to attend the meeting.

Walter Garrison, head of the accounting division of public offices, replaced Ferguson and Benjamin DeGeorge, assistant to Van Schoik, represented him.

Others who spoke briefly were Norman Wolfe, county auditor, and C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the Richland county board of commissioners. About 50 trustees, clerks and commissioners attended the meeting. Luncheon was served at the church after the business session.

21 Believed Dead, 20 Others Hurt In Blaze In Halifax

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia—(Canadian Press)—Twenty-one persons were missing, many of them feared dead, after an early morning fire swept through the half-century-old Queen hotel today and then spread to adjacent buildings.

Twenty others were in hospitals suffering spinal injuries, compound fractures and burns. Many of the victims were hurt when they jumped from hotel windows before firemen could reach them as the flames roared swiftly through the old wood and stucco structure.

Unofficial estimates of the missing ran as high as 27 persons, but police said the hotel register had been lost in the fire and that it would be days before a complete list could be compiled.

It was believed however, that there were 87 guests and about 30 employes in the hotel when the fire started.

HO FOR SPRING

Despite January blasts costume jewelry designers already are thinking in terms of spring. Lapel ornaments suggestive of the year's gayest season are appearing in Fifth Avenue shops, one of the most amusing being a bird's nest of brown enamel perched on a green enameled branch with a wee occupant fashioned of rhinestones in the center of the nest. Another appropriate conception for spring is a pin formed like a spray of apple blossoms with two love birds perched on a branch.

If your card file of recipes tend to stick when you are looking through them, try moistening the thumb or finger with a little glycerine and you will find they will slide more easily.

FEDERATION HEARS PROGRAM ON DICKENS

Frank Speaight, British Dramatist, Sketches Life of Famous English Author; Interprets Characters From Novels.

ALTHOUGH the locale was the Ohio theater in Mansfield, the scene was the England of Dickens' fame—the London kaleidoscope of the early 1800's. Probably every woman in the audience of 150 was transported to Great Britain this morning by Frank Speaight, celebrated English actor, who presented "A Morning of Dickens Humor" at the final lecture-luncheon meeting of the Mansfield Federation of Women.

Before he did his dramatic sketches of characters from the Dickens novels, Mr. Speaight, who has spoken before clubs and university groups in nearly every important city in the United States, sketched the life of the author briefly. In stating the facts of Dickens' early education he said that he had read some of the world's best books including the St. James version of the Bible, "Pilgrim's Progress," "Tom Jones" and "The Vicar of Wakefield."

He told how Dickens went to work in a factory when he was about nine years old because his father had been thrown into debtors' prison. It was here that he started telling stories. While in school several years later he started a magazine, and at the age of 15 he became a clerk and started his true literary career.

According to Mr. Speaight, Dickens' popularity and his greatness rest in two things. He was a great historian and he was true to human nature. In fact he was the first writer of fiction to draw characters from the common people.

Mr. Speaight then gave several Dickens' characterizations followed by a recitation of the poem "The Bells" by Poe. Luncheon was served at the Women's Club at 1 p. m.

Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, president of the federation who introduced the guest speaker, made several announcements. She called attention to the final social meeting of the year which will be a luncheon-bridge March 23 at the club. On April 11 the annual business meeting and election of officers will be held at the club with Mrs. William Layton giving a book review as a special added feature.

Miss Florence MacDonald spoke briefly at the opening of the session in behalf of the Civic Music association, and the membership drive which is being conducted this month.

Talk on Music Given At Woodville Meeting

There were 27 members of the Woodville Mothers club present at the school yesterday for a regular business meeting conducted by Mrs. L. W. Hawkins. Mrs. Lewis Cashell gave a talk on "What Music Does." A program of guitar music and songs was then given by Gerald Daup.

Mrs. Chester Frickman gave several readings, and Mrs. P. D. Tucker and her committee served refreshments with St. Patrick appointments.

Lenten Story on Program of Guild

A Lenten story and several musical selections were features of yesterday afternoon's program for members of St. John's guild of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church when they met in the church parlors. Mrs. Jacob Rahm was in charge of the devotions, and Rev. Paul H. Saleste gave the prayer.

Mrs. Mary Harbeson read a Lenten story, and Mrs. Frank Stahl sang a vocal solo, accompanied at the piano by Miss Irene Leibhart. Vera Saleste also played a piano solo. Mrs. Frank May had charge of the program. Hostesses for the afternoon's meeting were Mrs. William Untiet, Mrs. Mary Touby, and Mrs. Arthur Touby.

The next meeting in the church parlor will be held on March 15, with Mrs. Louise Snyder in charge of the program. Mrs. Florence Schaller, Mrs. Katherine Wirtz and Mrs. Lydia Watkins will be the hostesses at that time.

THEATERS

THE Interstate Theaters, which operates the Park in Mansfield, will add another unit to its movie houses, according to an announcement made today in North Canton.

The M. M. and J. B. Mohler Lumber company will erect a $60,000 theater building in that community, which is an independent suburb of Canton, and A. G. Constant, head of the Interstate Theaters, will lease, equip and operate it. Other Ohio theaters in the chain are at Canton, Steubenville, East Liverpool and Portsmouth.

Kicking Dumas Around.

Scenario writers who prepared the Dumas classic "Three Musketeers" for the screen, probably had a lot of fun kicking the story around so that it fits the personalities of the Ritz Brothers. But it is done in the accepted slap-stick comedy manner, with the real Musketeers, portrayed by Douglas Dumbrille, John King and Russell Hicks, being out under the table when the Ritz boys outdrink them. From there on the comedy trio takes the place of the Dumas adventurers in the story. Don Ameche plays D'Artagnan and Pauline Moore is Constance. "Pardon My Nerve" is the second Madison film.

Good If It Works.

Florence Rice has an idea that a sure way to win a wealthy husband is to take up the nursing profession, but the first man she decides on is a young doctor who refuses to build up a wealthy clientele, while the second one presents an even greater obstacle, "Four Girls In White," at the Ohio, has drama and romance in the lives of four girls. It takes a great disaster to bring the girl to see her profession in its true light.

Adventure In China.

Two American sweethearts are caught in war-torn China, and an international spy ring, but they make the most of it since she is a newspaper woman and he is a news reel cameraman. "North of Shanghai" with Kaye Luke, James Craig and Betty Furness, is a Majestic feature for the last two days of the week. A new note is sounded in "Water Rustlers" for it has a singing cowgirl instead of a cowboy. Dorothy Page is the girl.

Mystery Thriller.

"Time Out For Murder," opening Friday at the Ritz, is a thriller, a murder mystery that involves newspapermen, a feminine employe of a collection agency, gangsters and the telephone company's time telling service. Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen provide romance in this episode of the Roving Reporters. Chick Chandler is the other reporter. The Three Mesquiteers in "Pals of The Saddle" is also to be shown.

Popular Juvenile.

An early Mickey Rooney picture, issued several years ago as "The Healer" is now re-issued as "Little Pal," as the result of the sudden rise to fame and popularity of the juvenile player. Since he can't make pictures fast enough to meet the popular demand, several of his earlier films are being re-issued. Ralph Bellamy plays the doctor with almost miraculous healing power, Karen Morley is the girl. The additional attraction is "The Last Express" with Dorothea Kent and Kent Taylor.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of these gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DOLLARS GOING BEGGING

Part of Utility's Illegal Rebound Remains Undisclosed.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—There is an estimated million dollars in possession of the Pacific Gas and Electric company that shortly will go begging for lack of people to claim it.

The money represents one-sixth of $6,000,000 impounded during a rate dispute which the courts have ordered rebated to gas consumers. Public utility experts say that in such cases about this proportion of impounded funds cannot be returned, owing to consumers having died or moved without forwarding addresses.

Under existing law, several officials assert, the money will revert to the company.

PROPPED UP IN BED TO INDUCE SLEEP

Puffy-Gassy Conditions Existed Before Taking World's Tonic

Says 'Asthma Not Only Cause of Breath Trouble'

The exact spot where physical trouble turns into mental trouble is often hard to put your finger on, but many specialists admit that being able to distinguish these differences is a valuable feature in considering what to do about humanity's ills. Notice how the physical affects the mental as Mr. Albert Cox, of 677 Wilson avenue, Coshocton, O., who is employed by American Art Works, unfolds his story to the WORLD TONIC man at Central Drug Store:

"When I'd lay down in bed at night stomach gas would become so bad that breathing was difficult. I thought I had asthma. Pains would start in my back and my legs and arms would ache and a jerking, twitching condition in my legs would make sleep impossible. In the morning when I'd bend over to put on my shoes, the blood would rush to my head and I thought I had high blood pressure. Lying in bed, unable to sleep, my mind would run over all sorts of horrible things. Constant pains in a continuously upset stomach got me to thinking about stomach ulcers. I don't know whether the physical pain which I could actually feel or the terrible imagining of things, that so often comes when your peace of mind is disturbed, was the worst. Some of my local friends have been taking WORLD'S TONIC and I got to talking with them and exchanging ideas. I was surprised to learn that a number of them had experienced quite a few of the same things as I. I reasoned that what had helped them should help me if my symptoms pointed to the same difficulties. And that was how I got started on WORLD'S TONIC.

"At once I learned what most of my trouble was. It was constipation and WORLD'S TONIC gave me such amazing relief from this condition that I immediately decided to be a regular user of it. Now everything seems different. All those symptoms that constipation was torturing me with have dropped by the wayside. I can sleep soundly at night, and it is no longer necessary to prop me up in bed to relieve those pains and aches that were preventing me from sleeping. I have a good appetite too and now can keep food on my stomach until it is properly digested. And, best of all, those frightful hallucinations about asthma, high blood pressure, and stomach ulcers don't make my nights a nightmare any more. I think WORLD'S TONIC is GREAT and you'll never catch me without it again."

WORLD'S TONIC gives that DOUBLE ACTION where needed. It relieves constipation and acts as a mild diuretic to the kidneys. Contains valuable alkalines with roots and herbs compound but no habit forming drugs or narcotics.

WORLD'S TONIC is for sale at Central and all other modern Drug Stores.—Adv. (E-62)

Tygers Show Up Poorly In Pre-Tourney Drills

Lightweight Champ Added to Mitt Card

Willie Russell of Columbus Meets Cleo McNeil In 10-Round Bout on Armory Mitt Show Tuesday.

By OSCAR RUHL

MANSFIELD sports enthusiasts are accustomed to seeing champions in action in the Armory ring, but not boxing kings.

Other than a wrestling champ will be unveiled by the Quality club at the Ashland road sports palace Tuesday night when the first professional boxing show of the year is staged with 21-year-old Fred Nolan as promoter.

The champion to show his wares is Willie Russell of Columbus, who is the lightweight standard bearer of Ohio. Russell, a colored boy, has been signed to trade leather with Cleo McNeil of Los Angeles in one of the three 10-round bouts on the inaugural presentation.

Fought In Boston.

A southpaw, Russell fights out of Perry Blakeman's stable. He is a graduate of the amateur ranks, according to the dope, and was good enough as a simon-pure to reach the A. A. U. finals in Boston a couple of years ago.

The fact that Russell is pretty well thought of in Ohio fistic circles was indicated the other night in Columbus when he was given the semi-final spot on the card topped by Floyd Gibbons and Charlie Belanger. Russell put Kid Sila away in three rounds in one of the niftiest performances on the card.

Russell's opponent is little less known. McNeil is now fighting out of Joe Basco's Barberton stable. And Joe, who can sit for hours and talk about his scrappers, figures he has another Armstrong in McNeil, also colored, by the way.

A strong puncher with plenty of stamina, McNeil, Basco believes, can beat Russell. His victories over Ray Sharkey and Frankie Lockwood in recent appearances indicate that he can throw gloves.

Pine On Card.

Nolan has yet to add one 10-round and a curtain raiser to complete Tuesday night's card. Lloyd Pine, Akron featherweight, who has appeared here frequently in the past, will meet Jose Fernandez of Fairmont, W. Va., in one of the three long scraps.

Tickets for the show will be placed on sale later this week at Hunt's News Depot and Ringside Cafe.

Temple Emmanuel was eliminated from the first place tie in the Class A Church league at the Y. M. C. A. last night, leaving the position to Park Avenue Baptist and Mayflower Congregational.

The Baptists knocked the Temple cagers out of the deadlock by hanging up a 27 to 23 victory in a game that was nip-and-tuck after the first period. A 10 to 4 lead obtained in the first period provided the Baptists' edge.

Mayflower won on a forfeit from St. John's Evangelical to retain a share of first place.

The First Lutheran and First M. E. quintets won the other games to remain in the tight second half race. The Lutherans limited Central M. E. to five points in the last half as they registered a 31 to 14 victory. Fogle tallied 13 points in the Methodists' 31 to 21 triumph over Episcopal.

New Mansfield Pilot Played in Big Leagues.

Ray E. French of Kansas City, Mo., who was named manager of the Mansfield club of the Ohio State league by President Norman Cohen yesterday, has had two years of major league experience.

French, who served as utility infielder and assistant manager with the Louisville Colonels of the American Association last year, played with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1923 and with the Chicago White Sox the following year.

The new pilot is expected in the city early in April to take charge of the training camp, which will be established in Findlay, Cohen announced.

Murphy Hopes Team Will Snap Out of Lethargy Before Friday's Game.

PROF. J. RUSSELL MURPHY of the basketball department at Mansfield high school is wondering whether the responsibility of defending the district championship in the coming Sandusky games is affecting the work of the Tygers in their drills.

The Tygeds have displayed little of the fire and dash that they showed in their workouts during the regular season, according to Murphy.

Good Omen, Murph?

Perhaps their mediocre showing is a good omen, the Tyger coach has been told, but, apparently, he doubts it.

Murphy considers Port Clinton, their first foe, as tough as the majority of teams the Tygers faced this season, and he is anxious to have them in splendid condition for the fracas Friday night.

His hope is that they snap out of their lethargy Friday night, but he is pessimistic.

If the Tygers can get past their first foe, they are accorded a wonderful chance of reaching the finals, which will be played next week-end.

Port Clinton's record is one of the best sported by any of the tournament teams. Two of the four or five defeats handed the

The semi-finalists will be determined in Saturday's games. Starting at 6 p. m., the Saturday schedule sends Tiffin Junior Order against Willard, the winner of the Mansfield-Port Clinton game against the winner of the Shelby-Norwalk tussle, Tiffin Columbian against the winner of the Fremont-Sandusky tilt and Bellevue against Ashland, in that order.

Top Friendly House Court Card Tonight

The Recreation Farm and Manilla cigar store cage teams will battle in the headline game on tonight's Senior league card at the Friendly House.

These two clubs, which are tied for first place, will open tonight's program at 6:45 o'clock, and this game will be followed by a meeting between the Augustine Canfields and Miller Dairys.

The Rex Billiards, who are also involved in the tie for the lead, meet the Blue Goose Schleans in the last game at 8:45. The cuemen won the first half title, with the Schleans finishing second.

KAPLANOFF TO TACKLE GRUNTERS FOR AL HAFT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The "grunt-and-groan" sport—for money—today beckoned to Carl (Kappy) Kaplanoff, Bucyrus, O., football giant who was a co-captain of the 1938 Ohio State gridiron team.

The 238-pound tackle signed a professional wrestling contract with Promoter Al Haft of Columbus after 60 days of training for the streunous mat sport. Haft said his new protege would make his debut in Columbus next week.

Lucas Lineup Strengthened By Return of Injured Guard

Richland County Champions Play First Game In District Tourney In Carey Tonight.

LUCAS high's Cubs, strengthened by the return of Capt. Johnny Oswalt to the regular lineup, trek to Carey today to engage the dangerous Bluffton quintet in an opening round game of the district Class B tournament.

Oswalt, regular guard, has been on the sidelines for a couple of weeks suffering from a knee injury, but Coach Alfred Axe believes the youngster is ready to return to duty tonight.

The Lucas combine, which annexed the county tournament last week by edging Butler by a two-point margin, faces its initial test in the second tussle scheduled at 8:30 p. m.

Butler Plays Friday.

Butler high, the county's other representative in the tournament, doesn't perform tonight, but will go into action against Carey high at 6:30 p. m. Friday.

The Axe-coach aggregation possess a wealth of scoring power and height, and is picked as one of the teams to beat in the meet.

Bluffton, a small, but difficult team to stop, may give the Cubs more trouble than they expect, but Lucas is favored to finish on top.

If Axe's men survive the opening round, they face what will probably be their severest test in tackling the winner of the St. Wendelin-Republic contest in its second game.

The St. Wendelin Mohawks are pre-tournament favorites to advance to the finals in the upper bracket.

Thompson Strong.

In the same bracket with Butler are Thompson, Harpster, Tiffin Calvert and Holmes-Liberty. Thompson, however, sports the most impressive record. The Seneca county title winner has registered 17 wins against two defeats. Harpster dropped 5 out of 21 contests, Holmes-Liberty won 12 and lost six, and Calvert has lost nine decisions in 14 games.

Republic, which lost to Thompson in the county finals, is a "dark horse." The club upset the dope by topping Bettsville in a semi-final affray. Bettsville advanced to the state tournament last year.

Indians Settle Down to Serious Business; Vitt, Heath Discuss Salary Question.

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Their opening encounter with photographers and sports writers over, the Cleveland Indians settled down today to the serious business of spring training.

The playing field schedule called for warmup activities by a dozen or so Tribesmen but most activity was expected at the quarters of Manager Oscar Vitt, slated to resume salary discussions with his youthful holdout problem, Outfielder Jeff Heath.

Vitt will have the backing of Vice President C. C. Slapnicka, who left his winter home at Del Ray Beach, Fla., yesterday to aid in convincing Heath he isn't worth the $10,000 he's asking. The latter was expected to conduct his side of the argument alone.

"Jeff's comparing his contract with Joe DiMaggio's second year pay," Vitt said last night, "but I tried to make him see he still isn't quite the finished product DiMaggio was after a year with the Yankees. He'll have to improve on the defense before he can really expect to get in the big money class."

Heath, who was second in the 1938 American league batting race, disclosed the club had increased its original offer of $7,500, but maintained the contract still is "very unsatisfactory."

ORLANDO, Fla.—Catcher Rick Ferrell arrived at the Washington Senators' camp today armed with a Spanish dictionary and a mitt. "We've got so many Cuban pitchers this year," he explained, "that I figured I'd better start doing something about the language." Ferrell's object is Roberto Ortiz, 203-pounder who knows no English but who throws very hard.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—It's a $5,000 pay reduction according to reports that is keeping Joe Medwick, slugging outfielder, from signing his 1939 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals. "That's not a cut, that's a stab," grumbled the star to friends.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Although five of his stars are not yet in camp, Manager Joe McCarthy insisted today the New York Yankees had no holdouts and asserted his squad would be complete by Monday.

John Perrine came through with a 607 count to pace the Refrigeration Machines to a 2679, the best team count of the night, and a clean sweep over the Appliance Finishers.

Paul Loegel of Refrigeration Assembly blasted out a 605.

Annex Final Games

Yuncker Team Forced Into Overtime to Beat Elks; Plant Halts Hi-Speeds.

By CHARLES MARTIN

MANAGER JIMMY BRERES' Yuncker Sports and the Westinghouse Electrics, who have been dominating play in the City Class A league this season, will meet Wednesday in a one-game playoff at Senior high for the circuit championship.

League officials originally planned for a three-game playoff for the title between the teams that won the individual round crowns, but decided last night to have the two teams meet in a single game playoff.

Victories End Race.

Both the Sports and Electrics registered their second straight final round victories last night and neither the Elks Lodge nor the Herrick Hi-Speeds have a chance of entering the title affair.

The Sportsmen ran into more trouble than they anticipated last night in the Elks quintet and had to go into a three-minute overtime period to emerge with a well-earned, 33 to 32, decision.

Pilot George Percy's Westies had an easy time of it drubbing the Hi-Speeds, 34 to 23, in the second tussle on the program.

Noel Morgan, erstwhile Mansfield high star, who joined the Elks ranks recently, was the principal cause of the Sports discomfort. The speedy forward sank seven out of eight foul shots, and five of them were converted at opportune times.

Morgan supplied the point that knotted the score at 29-all in the closing seconds of the regulation time, and he also tallied two of the three collected by the Elks in the extra session.

Yuncker's outfit, trailing, 18 to 16, at the intermission, suddenly broke loose with a basket barrage that boosted it into a 24 to 18 advantage midway in the third stanza.

But the desperate Elks, fighting to retain a chance of winning a place in the playoffs, came right back and sliced six points off their opponents' lead as they went into the final frame.

Harold Hayfer dropped in a goal beneath the basket to give the Sports a 29 to 27 lead with less than three minutes to go, but his teammates were unable to successively stall the remainder of the

66 Team, Individual Awards to Be at Stake In News-Journal Gold Medal Cage Tournament

THE Gold Medal basketball tournament to be staged by The News-Journal at the Y. M. C. A. for independent teams in Mansfield and vicinity this month will offer more team and individual awards than ever before put on the block in a cage event hereabouts.

A total of 66 team and individual awards will be at stake in the tournament to open March 22.

The championship trophy is of sunburst finish and 19 inches high. Other trophies of the same height, finished in silver and bronze, will go to the second and third place teams.

Each member of the winning and runner-up teams will receive fully modeled minature basketballs, while players of the other two clubs to reach the semi-finals will receive gold medals.

Medals will also be awarded to the players who are named on the two all-tournament teams. The ten outstanding players of teams defeated in the first round of play will be awarded gold merit medals.

Other medals will be awarded to the player making the most points in any game and the one with the highest number of points during the tournament.

Five gold sportsmanship medals will also be presented, in addition to an award to the manager of the championship team.

The three outstanding players in the tournament will be honored with the U. S. Federation medal awards. The players receiving these medals will automatically become candidates for the 1939 All-America team, which is selected annually by the Central States basketball association.

The tournament is open to any independent teams in this district fulfilling the requirements. The entry fee is $3 per team.

Entry blanks and rules will be available at the Y. M. C. A. next week, but teams wishing earlier information are requested to contact Don Cram at the Y.

BACKACHE?

Try Flushing Excess Poisons And Acid Thru Kidneys And Stop Getting Up Nights

35 CENTS PROVES IT

When your kidneys are overtaxed and your bladder is irritated and passage scanty and often smarts and burns, you may need Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules, a fine harmless stimulant and diuretic that starts to work at once and costs but 35 cents at any modern drug store.

It's one good safe way to put more healthy activity into kidneys and bladder — you should sleep more soundly the whole night through. But be sure to get GOLD MEDAL — it's a genuine medicine for weak kidneys—right from Haarlem in Holland.

way. And Morgan slipped in two free throws in a row to tie the score.

Al Stickler hit for a goal early in the overtime to give the Sports a 31 to 30 lead. But Hayfer had to break in under the basket for another one to account for the winning margin. Morgan collected his final foul shot in the last 50 seconds of the game. Laverne Gray set the individual tempo with 10 points, while Morgan and Tom Farrell led the losers with nine.

Bob Burgett, Butler high coach, made his debut with the Sports in the opening half last night. The high school mentor relieved Hayfer near the end of the second period. Burgett, although he failed to get a shot, worked in smoothly with the Sports' deceptive passing game.

The Westinghouse club and the Hi-Speeds played through a slow first period and then the Electrics went on a scoring spree to gain an advantage that was never seriously threatened. From there on in there was never a doubt about the outcome.

Grab Huge Lead.

Leading by a 4 to 2 count in the initial quarter, the Westies grabbed a 23 to 8 lead at the rest period, and finished the third chapter sporting a 29 to 16 advantage.

Howard Poole, whose floor game was a feature of the melee, set the scoring pace with 12 points, with George Nana topping the Hi-Speeds with 11 points.

STOCKS EDGE BACKWARD IN TODAY'S MART

Bonds, Commodities Mixed; London Market Rallies After Early Dip.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks, with a few exceptions, inclined to edge backward in today's market.

A shade in arrears were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, Glenn Martin, Anaconda, Kennecott and General Electric.

Bonds and commodities were a trifle mixed. The London market rallied after an early dip.

Holders of rail shares noted the summary of the Association of American Railroads disclosing January net operating income of Class 1 lines amounted to $32,890,711, or at the annual rate of return of 2.40 per cent on their property investment. The total compared with $7,144,036, or an investment yield of .52 per cent, in the same 1938 month.

Reports of increasing purchases of building materials brought further study of stocks in this field.

Encouraging to analysts was the survey of Dun & Bradstreet showing another brisk jump in the country's bank clearings for the week ended yesterday.

turned south on Benton street."

The detective reported that although he could have shot the man as he fled from the house, he hesitated because he had no warrant for his arrest and had not yet identified him as the actual check forger.

Police first learned of the forgeries at 5 p. m. yesterday when C. D. Bell, proprietor of the Bell Music store, reported that he had received a check for $25.70 in payment for a radio which he had sold to the man.

Bell said that he had checked the signature with the Richland Trust company and found that their was no account listed in the man's name.

Further investigation by police revealed that Mrs. C. R. Smeltzer, from whom the man had rented a room the day before, also held a check for $6 which they said was a forgery.

Officers who searched the man's room after the encounter last night reported he had no baggage and that Mrs Smeltzer said he told her he was going to bring his bags last night.

He was described as 28 years old, six feet tall and weighing about 180 pounds. He was dressed in a dark suit and overcoat and hat and had a small mustache.

MINERS MARCH TO PRESS FOR OHIO COAL LAW

Go to Columbus to Rally Aid for Bill Compelling Use of State's Own Product.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Hundreds of coal miners were reported to be converging on the capitol today to put pressure on the Ohio legislature for enactment of a law to help their industry.

The measure, up for a vote in the house, is designed to compel the burning of Ohio-mined coal in all tax-supported institutions, ranging from one-room school houses to the statehouse.

It would prohibit the use of out-of-state coal in the institutions unless it was quoted at a price 20 per cent less than Ohio coal. Officials who violated the law would become liable to a $500 fine.

...ide In Delegation.

...ian 500 miners and business ... from the Hocking Valley ... rn Ohio coal fields sent ... would be here.

... ring states producing ... threatened to pass retaliatory legislation if the Ohio ... becomes law. One branch of the West Virginia legislature already has approved such an act.

The measure was bottled up in the reference committee of the Ohio house for three weeks by the Republican leadership until coal miners' organizations forced its release.

The miners, contending that the bill would increase employment in the coal fields, found encouragement in a statement by Gov. John W. Bricker.

In his message to the legislature he said:

"I ask you to give attention to the proposal that, wherever practicable, tax-supported institutions in Ohio be required to burn coal mined in Ohio."

In the senate the members prepared for a vote on a bill to reorganize the state division of conservation. It would create a commission with authority to select the conservation commissioner, a right now vested in the director of agriculture.

Sportsmen's organizations drafted the measure as a step toward taking the division "out of politics."

The senate judiciary committee also found the coal miners as well as operators on its collective neck as it sought to reach a decision on a bill to reduce pollution in the Ohio river.

Spokesmen for the miners and operators told the committee the industry would be crippled financially required to neutralize the ... mine drainage. They offered to go along with the bill if the mines were exempted.

Mayor James Stewart of Cincinnati wanted approval of the bill which would make Ohio a signatory of a nine-state anti-stream pollution compact, asserted sewage in the Ohio river was becoming a serious menace to residents of river cities.

France Picks War Hero As New Envoy to Spain

Petain's Selection Gets Approval of Franco, Paris Informed.

(By United Press)

PARIS — Marshal Henry Phillippe Petain, hero of the defense of Verdun, was named France's ambassador to Nationalist Spain today.

The cabinet met this morning as a formal council of ministers under President Albert Lebrun to consider the appointment. Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet announced that Jose Maria Quinones De-Leon, who is to be the Nationalist ambassador to Paris, had advised him that Generalissimo Francisco Franco had approved of the nomination of Petain.

Thus the cabinet was able to announce at once that the venerable hero of the historic French defense of Verdun would be France's ambassador to the newly recognized government.

The appointment was considered a particularly happy one because Petain, the late Gen. Jose Sanjurjo, executed by the Loyalists early in the Spanish Civil war, and Gen. Franco jointly planned the French-Spanish campaign of 1924 which crushed Abdel Krim, Moroccan leader.

It was understood that Petain, now 82, would start for Burgos, the Nationalist temporary capital, within a few days.

It was known that at yesterday's secret meeting of the chamber of deputies foreign affairs commission, Foreign Minister Bonnet asserted that Franco had asked that Italian troops be withdrawn from Spain as soon as possible. It was said that Franco did not ask that the Italian air force be withdrawn.

Stories of members who attended the meeting differed widely, as is usual in such instances. But the consensus was that Bonnet said that Franco asked the Italian troop commander, Gen. Gastone Gambara, to withdraw his men as soon as possible. The request was made, according to reports, at Barcelona when Franco made his triumphal entry.

FUND SHORTAGE INQUIRY OPENS

Jury Hears Seven Witnesses in First Two Hours of Probe Into Discrepancies.

ify when the jury convened at 1 p. m. included Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, called as a witness in the case of Allen K. Ports, former municipal court clerk, who was dismissed after a $4,259 shortage was uncovered in his books, and three state examiners.

Marvin, Plymouth village clerk for six years, resigned late in January after an examiner's report uncovered the shortage in his accounts.

R. K. Erdenberger, conservancy tax collector, was dismissed by Treasurer Kolb last Saturday, two days after the conservancy tax discrepancy was discovered through complaints of two taxpayers who said they had not been credited with tax payments.

In all, 24 witnesses had been subpoenaed this morning, with nine of them to testify in the shortage cases. The two Mansfield women whose protests to County Treasurer Kolb started an investigation of the conservancy tax records last week were among the witnesses in the conservancy tax shortage. They are Mrs. Dora M. Garver and Lena Zay.

Finds No Evidence of Tampering.

Judge Huston said he had found no evidence of any attempt to tamper with the jury, and described the report of a threat in one of the shortage cases as "probably a wild statement."

He appointed Perry Wooden, 42 Hoffman avenue, as foreman of the jury. Wooden is a new member of the jury, having been named by Judge Huston to replace Mrs. Edna Fisher, 179 Western avenue, who was excused.

In his charge, which required 30 minutes to read, Judge Huston made no direct reference to the shortages. His statement said in part: I wish to call your attention to recent articles in the public press to the effect that certain public officials have in violation of their obligations been guilty of certain criminal acts as disclosed by the reports of state examiners. No arrests have been made or steps taken either on account of sympathy, fear, or political influence to punish those charged with defalcations.

"It is highly important that indictments be returned against those who appear, upon an honest and impartial examination, to be probably guilty of the commission of a crime.

"It is not your duty to determine the ultimate guilt or innocence of the accused person, nor to concern yourself with clemency. That is one of the duties of the trial judge."

ALLOTS $18,800 IN RELIEF FUNDS

State Distribution for County Expected to Be of Little Help in Dilemma Here.

Deputy County Auditor Arthur S. Beck said that the funds, when received here would be allotted by the county commissioners to the various sub-divisions on the basis of their relief load.

City and county officials however pointed out that the funds would do little to help them out of their present dilemma. The city has $23,058 in notes, issued last year that are overdue and is without funds to meet the payments.

Besides this amount, relief expenditures mounting at the rate of $300 a day have already past the $20,000 mark for the first two months of this year.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe yesterday received $20,600 from the state in public utility part of this city and county's notes, but has not yet determined how the allocations will be made.

State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood commenting on the reduction made in the budget requests said:

"It seems clear that the general assembly did not intend to reimburse counties having balances on hand Jan. 1, 1939, which had accrued from the distribution of state-levied taxes earmarked for relief, but to provide funds to those counties whose resources were exhausted, provided they could match the distribution on a 50-50 basis."

He said his certifications might be altered by the board of control and that dissatisfied counties could carry complaints to the board of appeals created by the relief law.

No money was available for the other 53 counties because they had balances in their relief accounts.

U. S. Bares Acid Cache Powerful Enough to Sink Ships

SPY PROBERS SAY JAP BOAT HAULED CARGO

Chemical Transferred From German Ship to Japanese Vessel, Officer Says.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Secret files of the naval intelligence department, introduced at the trial of three alleged Soviet Russian spies, disclosed today that United States agents had discovered just below the border in Mexico a cache of powerful acid which, if poured into the ocean, might eat through the armored plates of battleships and sink them.

Drums of this acid were transported to a spot off the lower California (Mexican) coast by the German freighter Edna and transferred to the Japanese fishing boat Flying Cloud, which took them ashore at Ensenada in June, 1937, the naval report said.

Read Before Court.

The report was signed by Lieut. H. De D. Clayborne, chief of the San Pedro, Cal., intelligence bureau. Excerpts from it were read by United States Attorney Benjamin Harrison who is prosecuting Mikhail Gorin, west coast manager of the Soviet intourist bureau, his wife, Natasha, and Hafis Salich, former naval intelligence agent, on espionage charges. The three are charged with having stolen from naval files confidential matter relating to Japan, which was sent to Russia.

Nothing was read from the files to indicate how United States spies got the acid sample in Mexico. That was a job of counter-espionage by naval agents.

Ensenada is only 90 miles from San Diego, the great United States naval base.

Lieut. Clayborne's report said two Japanese had been arrested while dumping some of the acid in the ocean near Terminal Island, in Los Angeles harbor, and that naval agents in Hawaii had discovered another attempt there to test the acid.

It said that the Ensenada warehouse had burned shortly after a United States immigration officer had been shot while trying to stop two unidentified men from crossing the Mexican border into California. Naval agents got the acid sample after the warehouse fire, the report said. The drums, twice as large as navy gasoline drums, were lined with an acid-resistant substance, presumably rubber.

Regarding the Japanese boat, it said: "The Flying Cloud is reported to do very little fishing."

Clayborne also discovered that the little boat had radio sending and receiving apparatus capable of communicating with Tokyo from anywhere in the Pacific.

ROOSEVELT SHIP IN CHOPPY SEA

Heads For Carolina; President Establishes New Precedent.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—The cruiser Houston, bringing President Roosevelt home from the fleet war games, sped through a choppy sea today for Charleston, S. C., where she is due to dock tomorrow afternoon.

Before closing the temporary White House offices in Coral Gables, Acting Secretary William D. Hassett received a message disclosing Mr. Roosevelt had established another precedent by ordering the navy department to make a heavy cruiser available to transport the remains of Hirosi Saito, former Japanese ambassador who died in Washington last Sunday, back to his land.

LICENSE PLATES MOVE RAPIDLY

Sale Runs Ahead of Last Year, Says Beverstock.

Sale of auto license plates for the first day was considerably higher yesterday than a year ago, according to Frank Beverstock, deputy registrar.

Yesterday 218 passenger plates and ten truck and trailer plates were sold, as compared with a total of 147 last year. There was a decided let-down today, however.

There were 7,347 passenger plates sold during the month of March last year, which was low for the first month of the fiscal year, although the normal nummer of 13,338 were sold during the entire year."

Warren Police Head Blasts at 'Ouster Ordinance.'

WARREN —(AP)— Police Chief Barney J. Gillen protested vigorously today against a city ordinance which he interpreted as a direct attempt to remove him from the office he has held for 22 years.

The 67-year-old chief, veteran director of the Ohio Police Chiefs' association, is the only member of either department whom the ordinance would affect immediately.

NAME PACELLI AS NEW POPE

Cardinals Reach Agreement on Papal Secretary of State on Third Ballot.

lifted his right hand and signaled for the benediction.

A silence fell on the crowd and some knelt.

A monsignor opened a large ritual box and held it for the pontiff to see.

Then Pius XII began to speak in Latin.

Pius XII appeared on the balcony at 6:22 p. m. (12:22 p. m. EST), 13 minutes after the announcement of his election.

After giving his blessing, he remained for several minutes, smiling down on the vast crowd.

Camillo Cardinal Caccia Dominioni made the announcement of the election and the new name from the central balcony of St. Peter's.

The dean of the Order of Deacons appeared on the balcony at 6:07 p. m. (12:07 p. m., EST).

The cheers of the great crowd in the piazza prevented him from speaking for several moments.

Then, speaking in Latin, he said: "I announce the glad tidings—we have a Pope."

As soon as he uttered the first name of Pius XI's secretary of state, the crowd understood that Pacelli had been chosen.

Their cheers drowned out his next word and it was several seconds before he was able to say "Pacelli."

The new Pope visited the United States in October and November 1936.

He was received by President Roosevelt, two days after the latter's election, at Hyde Park. On a quick trip across the country by air, he visited Chicago, St. Paul, San Francisco, St. Louis and Cincinnati in less than six days.

He is a member of an Italian noble family whose relations with the Vatican always has been intimate.

During the period since the death of Pius XI he served as Cardinal Camerlengo, or administrative head of the church.

White Smoke Appears.

First indication that the cardinals had agreed on a successor to Pius XI came in the traditional way—by means of white smoke from the chimney of the Sistine chapel.

The curling white smoke was first seen at 11:30 a. m. (EST) and the Vatican radio announced the election.

Two ballots in the morning had failed to give any candidate the required majority and black smoke streamed from the chimney.

The election was one of the quickest in Vatican history, coming on the third ballot of the conclave within 24 hours after the cardinals had been locked within the conclave city for voting.

A throng of 50,000 persons or more joyfully shouted when the thin wisp of smoke appeared.

As soon as the smoke appeared, the crowds pushed up onto the steps of St. Peter's to hear the announcement of the cardinal elected and the name he would take as head of 331,500,000 Catholics.

Many of those in the great piazza knelt in their first reverence to the new pope before they knew his identity.

Crowd Up Steps.

The crowd, although orderly, broke through the cordon of Carabinieri and Fascist militiamen to swarm up the steps of the Basilica.

The smoke scarcely had disappeared five minutes after its first wraith-like showing before the Vatican radio broadcast a call to the faithful of Rome to come to St. Peter's square for the official proclamation of the election from the central balcony.

The balloting began at 4 a. m., EST. Vatican prelates estimated the first ballot was concluded in an hour, and the second ballot was taken immediately.

The Vatican's radio spokesmen said at that time that formalities probably were proceeding slowly because most of the cardinals never before had attended a conclave—having been elevated to their rank by Pius XI.

Called to Mass.

Before 8 a. m., attendants with hand bells had called the self-imprisoned cardinals from their cells in a wing of the Vatican which is the conclave city.

Calling in Latin "In Cappellam Domini,"—in the chapel lords—they roused the princes of the church for mass in Pauline chapel, celebrated by Cardinal Granito-Pignatelli Di Belmonte, dean of the college.

Tradition required that he give communion to each cardinal and deliver to each a discourse. The secrecy of the conclave kept its text from being known to the outside world.

Then, following breakfast in their cells, they entered the Sistine chapel, there to make the most momentous decision of their lives.

LAUD NEW POPE AS 'DIPLOMAT'

Churchmen Praise Pius XII for Diplomatic Skill in Various Concordat Treaties.

only two years later he was summoned to the sacred congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs to serve his apprenticeship in diplomacy.

Nominated professor of canon law at the Vatican's seminary of St. Apollinarius, he worked at his job with such zeal that the then Mons. Gasparri, at the time secretary of the congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs, urged the young priest to abandon his professorship and dedicate his entire time to ecclesiastical diplomacy.

The idea appealed to Father Pacelli and he became a "writer of minutes," or copyist at the congregation's offices. In this manner he began his diplomatic career at the bottommost rung of the ladder.

From that humble post he rose to become undersecretary of the congregation and then pro-secretary.

When Cardinal Gasparri became papal secretary of state, Pope Pius X nominated young Monsignor Pacelli secretary of the congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs. Upon his accession to the throne, Benedict XV retained Pacelli in that post. The new pope had had occasion to appreciate the promising qualities of the young prelate for he, too, had served in the secretariat of state and had come into close touch with young Pacelli.

During his secretaryship of the congregation he collaborated with Cardinal Gasparri in carrying out the monumental task of codifying the Canon law.

On April 21, 1917, Benedict XV decided to send Monsignor Pacelli to Munich as apostolic nuncio, a delicate diplomatic mission at the time when half the Catholics of Europe were engaged in a great war with the other half.

Before his departure, Benedict XV consecrated Monsignor Pacelli titular archbishop of Sardi, personally performing the ritual of consecration in the Sistine chapel.

Monsignor Pacelli conducted his pontifical diplomatic mission with supreme tact and wisdom during the last years of the war. It was these traits which paved the way for the vatican's concordat with Germany, signed after Pacelli had become papal secretary of state.

When regular diplomatic relations were established between the Vatican and the third Reich in 1920, Monsignor Pacilli was sent to Berlin as the first Apostolic Nuncio for all of the German confederation, except Bavaria.

In his new post Monsignor Pacelli's zeal won for him the good will and the sympathies of the German government, later destined to stand him in good stead in Rome during the Concordat negotiations.

His outstanding achievement was that he succeeded in bringing about the Concordat treaty with Bavaria as well as with Prussia. He worked for this end from the very beginning of his appointment to Berlin and was finally able to bring it to a successful conclusion with the additional satisfaction that he was able to negotiate the treaty himself, as secretary of state. It was about that time that he made the Concordat treaty with Austria as well.

Pope Pius XI elevated Monsignor Pacelli to the purple in the secret consistory of December 16, 1929. In February, 1930, he was made Papal secretay of state.

Cardinal Pacelli has been decorated by many governments. Among the orders he possesses, those he prizes most are France's grand cross of the Legion of Honor and Italy's Collare Dell' Annunziata.

JURY FINDS 'PROTECTION' AND VICE LAXITY IN PHILADELPHIA

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA.— The police department of the nation's third largest city, from the mayor down to the most obscure patrolman, was charged by a special grand jury today with "protecting" and permitting the "ravages of commercialized vice and crime" to flourish on a widespread scale.

Winding up a 17-months-long investigation of vice conditions, the jury declared in its final presentment that political domination of the department by the mayor and high city officials had resulted in the police being "derelict in their duty to their superiors and the public."

"The most far reaching and damaging political control," the jury reported, "has been exercised by Mayor S. Davis Wilson. He actually so directed it (the police department) that organized vice would and did flourish unmolested in Philadelphia, particularly in the summer of 1937."

Upon the jury's recommendation, Mayor Wilson was indicted earlier this week on charges of misbehavior in office and failure to suppress gambling. The mayor is vacationing in Florida and could not be reached immediately for comment.

Altogether, 343 persons have been indicted on various charges, mostly gambling, since the investigation began.

The jury report declared that the mayor, in addition to juggling the police personnel, had received "improper and substantial advances" which it said were "of such a nature as to cause grave doubt of his integrity and his fitness to remain in public office."

Nearly 100 engineers and guests from Mansfield and nearby towns attended. The next meeting will be held April 5 and will feature a talk on television.

Taylor was arrested in Mansfield yesterday by Mansfield police and he was returned to Shelby by Police Chief Leroy Coffey, who signed the affidavit for his arrest.

The Mansfield man is charged with operating a car owned by the Roby Motor Sales company of Shelby, where he was formerly employed. The car was recovered near Mansfield Feb. 27, ten days after it was reported stolen.

Third Arrest Hinted in Hines Jury Tampering Case.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A third arrest in the alleged attempt to influence one of the members of the jury that last week convicted James J. Hines, the Tammany politician, was hinted in official quarters today.

Two men, Henry J. Ficke, 38, and Salvatore Di Sapio, 36, have already been arrested by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

CITY GETS 8 BIDS ON 2 MACHINES

Moorhead Submits Lone Proposal on Police Cruiser, Mohican Low on Truck.

The city board of control today had before it bids submitted by eight automobile agencies on a new police cruiser and a truck to be purchased for the street department.

The bids, opened by the board which is comprised of Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist, included seven proposals on the truck and one bid on the new cruiser.

Nist said the contracts probably would not be awarded until next week.

R. E. Moorhead Ford agency was the lone bidder on the police cruiser. He quoted a price of $900, the maximum amount set up by council for the purchase of the machine, and allowed the city $225 for a two-year-old model, now in use, the minimum amount specified in the ordinance.

Specifications call for the delivery of a four-door sedan, equipped with bullet-proof windshield, and gunport, bullet-proof radiator screen, five six-ply tires, spotlight, heaters and twin defrosters.

It also calls for the transfer of radio receiver and transmitter from the cruiser now in service.

Of the seven firms which submitted bids on the truck, the Mohican Chevrolet company was low with a price of $1,050. This was $100 under the next low bidder, the Moorhead agency which quoted a price of $1,150 on a Ford truck.

Other bidders were Colby and Earick, Inc., $1,282.60 on a Dodge truck; Swisher and Shafer Auto company, $1,335 on a Federal truck; Ingraham and Martin Motor Sales, $1,350 on a Indiana truck; H. W. Wentz, $1,364.73 on a Reo, and G. L. Rogers, $1,447.46 on an International.

DAMAGE SLIGHT

Firemen Put Out Blaze on 2nd Floor of Post Office.

Fire of an undetermined origin which started on the second floor of the Mansfield post office shortly after noon today was extinguished by two fire companies before any serious damage resulted, Herman P. Homberger, postmaster, reported.

The fire was discovered by employes working on the first floor when they saw smoke seeping from one of the partitions. Firemen found that a smoldering blaze had started in the office of J. W. Sites, special agent for the department of internal revenue on the second floor. Sites was out of the office at the time.

Homberger, who said that only a small hole had been burned in the floor, estimated the damage at $50.

'Fisherman's Ring' Bestowed on Pius XII

VATICAN CITY — (INS) — A ring of gold—the famed "Fisherman's Ring" — depicting St. Peter in a boat, was bestowed upon Pope Pius XII a few moments after the College of Cardinals selected him today as successor to Pope Pius XI.

Thousands of the faithful will kiss the ring when they come to the Vatican on pilgrimages and are received by the Pope. Finally, when the Pontiff gives up his trust to still another Pope, the ring will be destroyed.

BURIED IN MARYSVILLE

BUCYRUS — The body of Charles Gardner, 57, farm worker, who died in Bucyrus City hospital Wednesday of pneumonia, was taken to Marysville today for burial. A native of Marysville, Mr. Gardner had been employed for some time at the Roy McNutt farm, south of here.

Baby, 2, Tortured With 50 Beatings, Stove-Lid Lifter

LEWISTON, Pa.—(INS)—A tale of intense, bitter cruelty—of the severe beating of a two-year-old child and the branding of the tot with a stove-lid lifter—was confessed today by 22-year-old Paul William Barrick, Marysville, near Harrisburg, according to state motor police.

Barrick was being held here pending the outcome of the girl's injuries. Police said Barrick confessed to beating the baby "at least 50 times" in recent months because he was "jealous" of her unwed mother.

Little Miriam Wolf, victim of the brutal assault, is in a critical condition in a Sunbury hospital, where authorities say she has been unconscious more than 72 hours.

The child's mother, Helen Wolf, about 24, a domestic in a rural Juniata county home, was being held as a material witness.

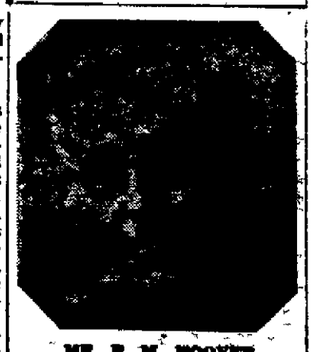
"ACHE ALMOST DROVE ME WILD," SAYS RETIRED MOTORMAN

Mansfield citizen now joyfully states there is no sign of the old agony in back, arms, legs or muscles. All praise given Vendol.

The popularity of Vendol grows day by day, as is proven by the many local people who call at Central Drug Store to see the Vendol Man and learn more about this splendid Root, Herb and Alkaline medicine that is doing so much good all over this section. Seems as if most everyone will soon be taking it—and there's no wonder, since it so often brings relief like that reported by Mr. P. M. Hoover of 343 Springmill St., Mansfield, a retired Street Car Motorman known to thousands here in this city. He says:



MR. P. M. HOOVER

"I'd been a victim of constipation for years and as time went on many other ailments resulted and combined to make my life really miserable. I was afraid to eat because of the suffering I knew would follow from indigestion, gas and heartburn; it seemed scarcely any use to go to bed, because my nerves were so frayed that restful sleep was just about impossible. And, worst of all, my body seemed to be one solid ache, with particular misery in my back, arms, and legs. The aches in my back made it hard to bend over and almost a torture to straighten up again. You can imagine how my work suffered while I felt like this.

"It was astonishing to see the way Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets helped me. Seems they were made especially for me.

"The first few doses got my bowels moving like a charm and now, since taking this treatment about a month, I'm like a brand new person. I eat whatever I like without a sigh of the old after-distress; my nerves are so quiet that I sleep like a log almost from the moment my head touches the pillow; but most wonderful of all my grand relief is, there's no longer any trace of the old agony in either my back, arms, legs or muscles. Vendol is due a lot of credit for all of this, so it gives me real pleasure to publicly recommend it to others."

You'll never know how much good this grand medicine made from nature's Roots and Herbs with Alkalines added, can do for you till you give it a chance. It is sold by all leading druggists and the Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., to explain all about it. Don't delay seeing him.

RESUMES CITY RECORDS JOB

WPA Re-assigns Six Workers Included Draftsman for Sewer Survey.

The city records project, temporarily suspended three weeks ago when the personnel was transferred to the real property survey, had been re-opened today by the WPA.

Glenn Weller, city-WPA engineer, said that six persons including Olin Stroup, draftsman employed in the engineering department on a survey of the sanitary sewer system, had been reassigned to the project.

Additional workers are expected to be assigned to the project within the next few days from the group of 60 mothers who were dismissed by WPA several weeks ago when it was believed they were eligible for benefits for aid for dependent children.

Stroup, who has been employed by the city during the suspension of the project in order that the sewer survey would not be held up, was returned to the WPA rolls. He still will be retained on the mapping job, however.

Workers on the city records project are engaged in recodifying city ordinances and compiling vital statistics under Weller's supervision.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

More than 100 years ago it was not uncommon to see storeboats on important rivers like the Ohio. "Hello, the Boat!" by Phyllis Crawford, tells the story of the Doak family who traveled from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati in a storeboat selling various things to those who came to the shore to buy. The older boys and girls will enjoy reading this new book from the library.

For the girls, especially the 10-year-olds, the new book, "Thimble Summer," by Elizabeth Enright, will be a delightful story of Garnet Linden during a particular summer. The exciting events of that summer all happened after Garnet found a silver thimble that may have been magic. Anyway Garnet had some truly remarkable experiences when she went to the fair, when the hitch-hiking boy came to live with them, and many other times.

'SPANISH HOUSE' JOINS LIBRARY'S LATEST FICTION

Lady Smith Writes of 2 Young People Adopted by Wealthy Woman and Husband.

Lady Eleanor Smith, who has written some thrilling stories of gypsies, is the author of "The Spanish House," newly added to the Public library shelves.

This is the story of two young people whose paths cross when they are adopted by a wealthy woman and her artist husband. Paris Fan, an English gypsy, becomes devoted to the lonely little French girl, Maya Darquet, and they spend many happy hours exploring the forest near the Spanish House in Belgium. After many years of separation these two have a dramatic reunion at the Spanish House.

"The Younger Venus" by Naomi Royde-Smith, is a sophisticated and witty tale of a young writer, Anthony Frome, who falls in love with the picture of Susan Adderly whose house he occupies as a tenant while she is abroad.

"Man's Hope," by Andre Malraux is a story of the Civil war in Spain. The author shows war, naked and hideous, but reflecting some faint hope for the future in fraternity.

Kipling's Last Story.

"Teem" is the last bit of writing left by Rudyard Kipling, a story as memorable as any story he ever wrote. Teem was a treasure-hunter, a small earnest dog who sniffed out truffles among the thin oaks of France.

Other new fiction this week at the library includes "Smokefires In Schoharie," by Shafer; "Wait Until Spring," Fante; "Leisure for Living," Scanlan; "Too Many Cooks," Stout; and "Mr. Finchley Goes To Paris," by Canning.

"Grandma Called It Carnal" by Bertha Damon is an account of a girlhood in North Stonefield, Conn., with Grandma Gridwold, who believed with Thoreau that the simple life was the best. Grandma's aversion to "cooked meals" is only one of the author's amusing memories of a stern, cultured, remarkable lady.

"Give Yourself Background" by F. Fraser Bond outlines methods of study and supplies ideas for increasing your powers of observation and assimilation. He suggests that we seek the best minds and read the best books, then make all that they have to offer a part of us.

Interests Gardners.

David Fairchild relates the travels of a plant explorer who has roamed the whole world seeking knowledge and specimens of rare plants, in his book "The World Was My Garden."

"The U. S. Camera Annual for 1939," edited by T. J. Maloney, carries the pictures which Edward Steichen has judged representative of our country in spirit and form.

"Sunset's Cabin Plan Book" edited by Ralph P. Dillon contains plans for a number of attractive rustic cabins. "The American Builder's Big-Value Homes" offers plans for modern houses of popular sizes that give more house for the money.

Other non-fiction: "Church and the Christian" by Mathews; "Prospects of American Democracy," Counts; "Abolition of Poverty," Ford and Ford; "Consumer-Buyer and the Market," Coles; "Blood and Steel: Rise of the House of Krupp," Menne, "Candleday Art," Rawson; "Pottery of the Ancients," Stiles; "Ventriloquism as a Hobby," Vereker; "Leathercraftsman," Snyder; "Daily Except Sundays," Streeter; "Midway In My Song," Lehman; "No Royal Road," Custer; "Cloudy Trophy: Romance of Victor Hugo," Daudet; "March of the Iron Men," Burlingame; "Ports of the Sun," Early; "Arranging for the Modern Dance Orchestra," Lange.

Why March Has Many Dangers

March is considered by many the most dangerous month of the year, because the change of seasons is more than a good many people can stand.

Occasional sunny days give people a false feeling of security.

Don't be misled! Colds are prevalent now and thousands suffer from the after-effects of earlier colds. It is important that treatment be prompt—and dependable.

Start building up your system by taking Father John's Medicine. Its wholesome, nourishing ingredients, rich in vitamins, help increase strength and vigor. It has been used for 84 years for colds and to aid in developing strong, sturdy bodies.

3 DAMAGE SUITS ASKING $50,000 UP FOR HEARING

Dispute Over Filling Station Lease, 2 Traffic Accidents On Docket Next Week.

A $5,000 amage suit involving a dispute over a lease on a filling station property at Fifth and Main streets and personal damage actions for $25,000 and $20,000 will top a list of seven cases scheduled for trial before the county petit jury, beginning Monday.

The filling station property, which has been the center of court proceedings for two years, is involved in a cross-petition filed by the Motor Fuel Cooperative of Mansfield, Inc., which asks damages for alleged breach of a lease on the property.

The action was filed against Mrs. Madella Wiedenmayer of Newark, N. J., former owner of the property, who lost it in a tax foreclosure case.

Contending that its lease was broken when the property was sold last year at sheriff's sale for delinquent taxes, the Mansfield firm asks damages for being ejected when the Fair Price stations, Inc., the present owner, took possession. Atty John C. O'Donnell is counsel for the Motor Fuel Cooperative.

Girl Sues For $25,000.

In a case set for trial Tuesday Miss Helen Stoner, Mansfield, seeks $25,000 damages from Edward Hagesfeld, Cleveland, for injuries she received in October, 1937, when the car he was driving struck a pole along the West Fourth street road. George Martin, of Cleveland, also a passenger in the car, was killed.

Attys. John C. O'Donnell and Francis R. O'Brien represent Miss Stoner and Attys. Henkel and Gongwer are counsel for Hagesfeld.

A fatal traffic accident on route 13 south of Mansfield was the basis of a $20,000 personal damage suit scheduled for hearing Wednesday.

Royal E. Bonner of Fredericktown is defendant in the suit which was filed by Edith Keller, administratrix of the estate of Foster Cross, who allegedly was struck by a car driven by Bonner. Cross was fatally injured while he was changing a tire on his car at the edge of the highway.

Attys. Beam and Beam and C. F. Creedman represent the plaintiff and Weldon and Huston and Wilbur F. Benoy are counsel for the defendant.

Other cases set for trial during the week are:

Oscar H. Foulke and Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company vs. C. F. Robbins, for $5,706 damages resulting from traffic accident near Shelby; Attys. Long, Anderson and Green for plaintiff.

Edward Harriman vs. Wilson Duckworth, for $200 damage to plaintiff's automobile in accident near Mansfield in July, 1937; Attys. Beam and Beam for plaintiff.

Crawford Finance, Inc., vs. Charles Foster and others, for recovery of property allegedly held without cause by defendant; [illegible] $387 damages for unlawful retention of property; Attys. Beam and Beam for plaintiff.

Hobart Mynhier, administrator of estate of Leonard Mynhier, deceased, vs. Ohio Industrial Commission, for industrial compensation for accidental death of Leonard Mynhier, in November, 1936.

Eat Frutina Wheat Bread

AND BE SURE . . .

Authorities who have devoted their professional lives to a study of the subject of health will tell you that constipation is the most common complaint known to civilized man. Primitive man subsisted largely on the plentiful supply of fruits and vegetables which kept his system and the intestines in tip-top condition, and supplied vitamins the body needed. FRUTINA WHEAT BREAD is a mighty healthy oven product that contains nine different pulverized fruits —and all the vitamins A - B - C - D - E and G—no other bread can make that statement!

FRUTINA WHEAT BREAD offers you a real health opportunity—it has actually been prescribed for ailing patients by leading Doctors and Physicians throughout Ohio, and in no case of our knowledge has it failed to bring relief to persons suffering from constipation and acid in the system. Remember that FRUTINA WHEAT BREAD HAS NEVER FAILED WHERE IT HAS BEEN THOROUGHLY TESTED!!!

It's fun to dine away from home occasionally—when you do, ask for FRUTINA WHEAT BREAD—most progressive restaurants will have it for you. Try it toasted at breakfast tomorrow morning—it's swell and mighty conducive to helping you start the day off right.

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1939.

It is difficult for older residents to understand how a home-town boy can make good.

Aside from folks living in New York and San Francisco, attendance at the fairs is expected to be quite representative.

With the next business upturn set for April 1, comes the thought that Harry Hopkins may be just around the corner, waiting to cry out, "April Fool!"

Sales Tax Stamps to Have Value.

AFTER May 1 the sales tax stamps that you are supposed to receive when you make purchases will have a value of $3 for every $100 face value of the coupons.

This may not seem to mean much to the individual saver of these stamps—but the total of the 3% refund on ALL retail sales tax stamps issued in the state in a year will run something above a million dollars, and the idea is that church societies and various other groups and organizations will gather up sales tax stamps from members and friends, so that an appreciable sum can be obtained by this organized effort.

A recognized weakness of the retail sales tax set-up in Ohio has been the lack of interest by purchasers in securing and destroying sales tax stamps. This resulted last year in an estimated loss of around ten million dollars in sales tax revenues in the state.

Some organizations are already at work pledging members and friends to save sales tax stamps for them, and unless this is over-done to the extent of becoming a nuisance, it should stimulate public interest in insisting on receiving stamps with every purchase.

Boy Scout Court of Honor.

NATIONAL recognition of the accomplishments of Johnny Appleseed area of the Boy Scout organization serves as a fitting testimonial to the fine quality of scout membership in Mansfield and vicinity as well as to the excellence and competency of supervision.

Membership increase of more than 33 per cent in this area within the past year evidences not only increasing interest among boys of scout age but also indicates greater public co-operation in providing suitable facilities for Boy Scout activities and in supplying required leadership.

Court of honor ceremonies at the Elk home this evening, in which a number of scouts are to be advanced in rank, will give an excellent opportunity for persons interested in the Boy Scout program to get a better understanding of what is being done in this organization.

Frowns on Easy Divorces.

WHILE inclination has been shown, in some states, to make divorces easier to get, Judge H. E. Culbertson, newly elevated to the common pleas bench in Ashland county, intends leaning in the other direction, according to news reports from the adjoining county.

"Entirely too many couples go to the divorce court the moment their married life runs into a snag," says Judge Culbertson. "The wholesale way in which quarreling couples run after separations has got to stop."

Judge Culbertson expresses belief that much of the domestic trouble to which he makes reference results from petty quarreling which the man and wife should be able to settle "without running to a divorce lawyer."

He is particularly disturbed by instances in which a divorce is sought by parents of children. "We still have penitentiaries where I can send men if they fail to live up to court orders to support minor children," he said.

Hollywood as a Teacher.

ANNOUNCEMENT from Hollywood indicates a new trend in American films. Walter Wanger, a leading producer, suggests that movie production should now get away from the "escapist" motif—that is, from mere entertainment intended to make people forget their troubles—and adopt a serious purpose. That purpose would be a realistic presentation of world conditions today, with emphasis on American democracy.

"What we who believe in our democracy would like to do," he says, "is to make films that would counteract totalitarian ideologies, and make ours more effective by using the truth that is on our side. I do not call this propaganda; I call it a necessary patriotic service."

"A new Hollywood" is appearing on the horizon, he says, a Hollywood more characteristically American.

No doubt the film industry could perform very useful service along the lines suggested. But straight propaganda might defeat its purpose. Democracy is an elusive bird, a spirit rather than a form, a manner of life and thought more than a doctrine. Patriotic dramas should be first of all good dramas. There is a wealth of material for them in this country, and the time is ripe.

Gas Tax Reform Proposed.

SINCE the first gasoline tax was imposed in Oregon twenty years ago, state and federal governments have collected $8,093,398,000 from the motorists of this country. The original idea was to use the tax for construction and maintenance of highways. In recent years gas taxes have often been diverted to other uses. Last year, for example, only a little more than half of the $100,000,000 collected by New York state in motor fuel taxes was spent on its highways.

The gas tax has been an easy one to collect, but there are serious students of tax problems who say now that it has been carried too far, that the tax is out of proportion of the cost of the product on which it is imposed.

Prof. F. G. Crawford of Syracuse university, author of a book on motor fuel taxation, urges a number of reforms in this connection. He proposes that the federal government surrender the gas tax entirely to the states, that county and city gas taxes be abolished, that stronger laws be enacted to prevent tax evasion, that taxes on Diesel fuel be based on the use to which the Diesel engine is put, and that constitutional amendments be passed forbidding diversion of the gas tax to pay other expenses. Certainly the situation needs study and clarification.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Whatever you may think of the present congress, it is a dream of harmony, of efficient organization and of diligence to duty compared with the congress of 150 years ago. The anniversary of that first session is being celebrated with a world's fair and a speech by the president.

By act of the well nigh defunct Congress of the Confederation, the new congress compounded by the Constitution was called to meet in New York on the first Wednesday in March. That happened to be March 4. So now you know how that got started.

Yet when March 4 came around there were not enough senators and house members who cared seriously about their jobs to be present for the opening session. They were tending to the spring plowing, and what not, and could not be inveigled into their seats even though congress then was meeting in New York.

Only eight senators showed up, not enough for a quorum. The house also lacked a quorum. The legislators could do nothing but twiddle their thumbs and hope that the next stage from New England and from the south would bring in more members. New England members were in the majority in the first arrivals.

Not So Highly Paid.

THEY were paid $6 a day while congress was in session (which perhaps wasn't to be sneezed at in those days). The pay now is $10,000 a year, about $27.50 a day every day in the year, or nearly $60 a day for days they are in session.

Congress adjourned from day to day and by March 11 the eight senators got tired of it and sent out a circular asking the 18 absent members to come in. By March 18, with still no new members present, the diligent eight wrote to the eight nearest senators and asked them to show up.

The house finally got a quorum on April 1. A senate quorum showed up April 6.

The first job was to count the electoral college ballots and learn who were elected president and vice-president. They already knew, of course, just as they know now. The house and senate still go through the motions of tabulating the electoral vote.

They appointed members to tell Washington and John Adams that they were president and vice-president. The notification reached Adams at Boston, where he had just returned from nine years' abroad. Escorted by troops from border to border of the states he crossed, Adams came riding gloriously into New York.

The President Arrives.

WASHINGTON came along later from Mount Vernon and people lined the streets of cities through which he passed.

Meanwhile congress got around to doing some business. On April 7, one day after a quorum showed up, the senate appointed a committee to draft a bill organizing the judiciary.

By April 8 the house was ready for speeches and the first of any importance was delivered by the youngish James Madison, delegate from Virginia, who had had a hand in framing the Constitution.

"The Union," said he, "by the establishment of a more effective government having recovered from the state of imbecility (gad, what a word) that heretofore prevented a performance of its duty ought in its first act to revive those principles of honor and honesty that have too long lain dormant."

After a time he got down to the meat of the matter, as house members do, even to this day, and proposed a tax. "But the system must be such a one," he said, "that while it secures the object of revenue, it shall not be oppressive to our constituents." So now you know where that idea started also.

Timely Editorial

Uncommon Wisdom.

It is one year since a $35-a-week clerk in Boston won first prize of $100,000 in a contest conducted by a cigaret company. Of this the government took $37,000 in taxes. It would be pleasing to be able to say that with the balance the young man bought pressing necessities and a few comforts of life, took a short holiday with his wife, and salted the rest away to work for him from then on.

As a matter of fact, he did just that, and it is what makes his story an exception to the run of tales of sudden wealth which overwhelms the recipient. The management of money is an art, and when a quantity of its falls unexpectedly into the lap of a stranger to it, fantastic happenings are likely to ensue.

The Boston winner invested his winnings so as to insure himself an income of $45 a week for life. It is the thing the sensible man says he would do with the same money, got in the same way; but with no assurance that he would. Money can do peculiar things: the most peculiar are what it does to people.—Detroit News.

Hopkins as White House Aspirant

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Whatever else may be said of Harry L. Hopkins' "appeasement" speech, intended to start the wheels of prosperity turning again in this country and to pave the way to his own nomination and election next year, very little poker strategy was shown. The build-up was wrong. The timing was calculated badly. And finally, it became evident that Hopkins simply does not have the golden radio voice of his chief.

On this last point, one wonders if Mr. Roosevelt is really doing his best by this, his second candidate to succeed him in the White House — whether Hopkins, like Robert H. Jackson, is not being "given a run" like a candidate at a presidential convention. For it would seem to the most casual student of mike oratory that the president must have known that Harry was not big time so far as broadcasting is concerned, and that he could be improved quite considerably by a little training.

Most people, for instance, figure that Herbert Hoover would like another try for the White House brass ring, but nevertheless he did advise Thomas E. Dewey, just before Dewey entered the New York gubernatorial race, that his oratory simply must be improved. And no one should know better than Hoover, who as secretary of commerce and as president was one of the worst ever known—until Alf M. Landon—but who turned himself, in the opinion of many observers, into the best orator the Republican party has by the time he had been out of the White House for four years.

And one seems to recall that Franklin D. Roosevelt was no William Jennings Bryan on the platform in 1920, when he was running for vice-president. But he was bowling them over by 1924, when he made that dramatic nominating speech for Alfred E. Smith at Madison Square Garden.

COMING back to Hopkins' strategy, or lack of it, it is possible that he could not avoid one big mistake. Looking at the whole affair coldly, it is probable that if Hopkins had made that same speech three months earlier it would have been a wow. The whole country would have talked of nothing else for weeks. Business would have been electrified. Everybody knowing how close he was to the president, it would have marked a dramatic and spectacular milestone.

What had happened in that three months to make it seem an anti-climax? To have made it, frankly, a disappointment to business as well as to Hopkins boosters?

The answer is simple. There had been too much build-up. The trouble was that Hopkins meantime had been nominated for secretary of commerce, and had to get himself confirmed. Not only that, he had to go far enough in his campaign to get confirmed to avoid any serious fight over his confirmation. Anything else might have thrown him off what seemed like a clear track leading to the White House before he could get steam up.

SO HE promised his head off, not in one interview but in dozens. He had half a dozen "spokesmen" on the conservative side in the senate telling their colleagues, and newspaper men, and business men back home, just how safe and sane Harry was going to be. He was specific in his pledges, left nothing to the imagination, and sounded more like Warren G. Harding promising more business in government and less government in business than like a social worker turned politician and reformer.

In fact, he said so much, and it was relayed so widely, that it is no wonder his final public effort was a dud.

Health Advice

Eyestrain Cause of Many Ailments.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EYESTRAIN, producing a set of discomforts which may be readily recognized as related to misuse of the eyes or they may be so apparently disconnected as not to be recognized except by one "in the know."

It is not [illegible] that pain in the [illegible] and itching of the [illegible] the frontal region [illegible] of the conjunctivae [illegible] to some abuse of vision, [illegible] vertigo, dizziness, [illegible] of cerebration, indigestion [illegible] headache—all of which may be caused by eyestrain [illegible] long periods of suffering be ascribed to other things.

Eyestrain [illegible] temporary, due to over[illegible] of tired eyes at reading, sewing, the movies, exposure to a bright light, or it may be chronic, due to deficiencies of the eyes or the eye muscles themselves.

Easily Corrected.

Temporary eyestrain in a good eye due to misuse is easily corrected. A few hours' rest of the eyes, relief from light and overstrain—time out lying down in a dark room with a cold compress over the eyes, or a long night's sleep—will invariably fix things up. When conditions of living or work are such as to produce the symptoms constantly, proper readjustment of light or strain will be a natural step. Many apparently obscure headaches or recurrent attacks of listlessness or indigestion can be corrected by such simple measures. As in the case of writer's cramp, individuals vary a great deal as to susceptibility to influences that cause eyestrain.

Eyestrain due to an ocular defect may have one of three causes —refractive errors, faulty accommodation and imbalance of the muscles of the eye.

Refractive errors are popularly supposed to be the most important. But the connection is not necessarily certain in all cases. An optically-perfect eye is almost unknown. And refractive errors are so common that it would be practically impossible to find a person with eyestrain who did not have a slight refractive error. There also are people with gross refractive errors who have no eyestrain. So they cannot be the sole cause or even the most important cause, although, of course, in a case of eyestrain any refractive error should be corrected.

The same applies to a certain extent to accommodation errors. Small ones are rare and cause little or no trouble; large ones are usually due to systemic trouble.

Advice of Oculist.

I am inclined to take the advice (although I admit my experience does not warrant my forming a very definite opinion) of those oculists who believe that muscular imbalance or heterophoria (the dynamic relationship of the two eyes working together) is the most potent cause of eyestrain. The movements of each eye are so arranged as to keep it co-ordinated with the movements of its fellow in such a way as to keep each visual axis always pointing at the observed object. The power of convergence, which is the most important of these co-ordinated movements, is in the region of 50 per cent in normal people, and may be as low as 20 per cent in cases of eyestrain.

New High In Wars

After an analysis of 902 wars and 1,615 internal disturbances in 2,500 years, a Harvard professor reported that the war index for the 20th century reached "a total eight times greater than all preceding centuries."

Of the major countries of the world Spain has been at war 67 per cent of the years in her history—which is the record high. England has been at war during 56 per cent of her history; France, 50 per cent; Italy, 36 per cent; Russia, 46 per cent; ancient Greece, 57 per cent, and ancient Rome, 40 per cent.

The United States has had a war on her hands during about 14 per cent of time that has elapsed since the Declaration of Independence.

Of all the European powers the country that has the least number of warring years is none other than Germany. The Germans have the low record of only 28 per cent warring periods since their history began.—Commentator Magazine.

Listen, World!

Nothing Is Ever Good Enough!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SUPPOSE you were asked to name which vice has proved most harmful to humanity, which would you choose? Anger . . . greed . . . envy . . . hate . . . dishonesty . . . cowardice. Doubtless these would be on your list. Yet none of them has done a tenth as much damage as another quality which we usually rate as Virtue! Meaning what?

Meaning—CONTENTMENT!

We're apt to admire these good-natured, happy-go-lucky people who are always willing to "let well enough alone"—perhaps because they provide such an excellent alibi for our own laziness and cowardice. But to Billy Jenkins of Los Angeles such citizens are Public Enemies—and he doesn't mean maybe! Listen:

"A famous visitor to America once remarked that our 'greatest vice lay in never letting well enough alone.' He might better have called it our GREATEST VIRTUE for it is that very trait of DISSATISFACTION which has made us the foremost nation in the world today. Americans are never willing to take things as they are—however good. We're always doubting, analyzing, experimenting, trying to make them BETTER. And thank Heaven we do—for where would there be any progress if we didn't?

"That refusal to 'let well enough alone' isn't confined to geniuses or great leaders. DISCONTENT OFFERS THE LITTLE FELLOW, AS WELL AS THE BIG SHOT, HIS CHANCE. It puts a kick into life even if you haven't great talent or opportunity. Suppose you have a small routine job, which you can do easily. Presently you find it bores you. 'There's nothing to it,' you say. 'It isn't important enough to think about. I'd like a REAL job . . . something worth while."

"That's where you make your mistake! ANY JOB CAN BE 'WORTH WHILE'—IF YOU'LL MAKE IT SO. The job itself may be mediocre—but YOU needn't be mediocre. You can make your career and yourself as unusual and exciting as you wish, if you'll just refuse to 'let well enough alone' and determine to make it BETTER.

"WE GROW BY OUR DISSATISFACTIONS . . . THERE WOULD BE NO PROGRESS IF PEOPLE WERE CONTENT WITH CONDITIONS AS THEY ARE . . . EVERY GREAT ACHIEVEMENT STARTED FIRST IN SOMEONE'S DISCONTENT.

"And this policy applies to our inside lives as well as our work. We should refuse to 'let well enough alone' in OURSELVES. We should be as discontented with our own personalities as we are with our positions in life. NOTHING IS EVER GOOD ENOUGH!"

Billy Jenkins,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Wise words, B. J. . . . words that would work miracles for us all, if we'd apply them to Exhibit A. We all complain . . . but we complain in the wrong direction. We blame the Other Fellow, or the System or Fate for our drab lives . . . it doesn't occur to us that WE ARE TWO-TIMING OURSELVES BY OUR OWN IG-NOBLE RESIGNATIONS AND SHODDY SATISFACTIONS.

You'll always have a second-rate life if you're willing to accept it. It's the fellow who DEMANDS SOMETHING BETTER who gets it.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This must be told anonymously. The young man is troubled and ashamed, as he should be. Listen:

"Shortly after coming to New York I formed the habit of lunching at a restaurant on 42nd street near Grand Central terminal. There was a very attractive hostess there, an Irish girl, and I asked her to go out with me. She laughed it off for awhile, and then began making vague excuses, and the more she put me off the more anxious I became to see her away from that restaurant and become acquainted with her.

"Every day I left notes for her. I would write them on paper napkins, or even on the table cloths. One day I begged her to let me take her father and mother and her to dinner, so that they could get to know me, and to allay any thought that might persist that my intentions weren't on the level. She even demurred at this, but eventually she said yes, and I went with her to meet her mother and we had a lovely dinner and evening together. Her father was dead.

"AFTER that I was a welcome guest in their home, and the girl and I went to many theaters together and to parties, and so in time we became close friends, and no day ever passed that if I couldn't see her we telephoned and talked, it seems now, for hours.

"One night I knew that I would have to come to some decision, as she was in love with me, and it wasn't right to monopolize her time and her affections if I weren't going to return them.

"You see, I wasn't really in love with her. She was sweet, and sincere and a lovely girl in every way. So I made up my mind to just fade out of the picture. To bring this about in a natural way I told her that I had been ordered to South America for six months, and to make it look good I even went down to a shipping company and booked passage on the Vestris. They wanted to come down to the pier and see me off, but I told them that farewells made me too unhappy, and so it was arranged that they were to give me a dinner, which they did, and then, after promising faithfully to write, I got into a cab and drove away.

"THEN I telephoned cancelling my passage and went into hiding. Well, you know what happened. The Vestris sank and 178 people lost their lives. Can you imagine my feelings? Can you imagine the remorse I felt at thinking what must have been in that girl's mind? For days I wallowed in a welter of indecision, I sank into a brooding melancholy that left me spent and almost cost me my reason.

"But I never telephoned. I am ashamed to say that I never telephoned. And after a while it was too late to telephone, for no one could forgive such an outrage as that.

"Then, one day, walking down the street I ran into a girl who used to live near her house. She nearly fainted when she saw me, because she thought I was dead. I seized her arm and dragged her into a restaurant and made her talk. She talked for hours, and finally she told me that this girl had my picture draped in black and that every day since the Vestris sank she had said prayers for me and thought of me and remembered me all those months and years.

"What now? What if I should come face to face with her one day, as I did with her friend? I don't know. Pose as an amnesia victim, perhaps. Try to think of some plausible lie, maybe. I don't know. It is something I have lain awake thinking of many nights, but the answer is the same. I don't know."

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Gift of a Book.

Your gift is in my hand, a book,
And as I hold it high
A little of yourself is there
In songs that sing and sigh.

A book of verse is treasure trove;
A novel will be read
And then laid down, the heart will know
Its tale and all is said.

But poetry is different,
Again and yet again
The wistful heart goes back to some
Loved verse of joy or pain,

And lingers there in happiness.
Some fragment it holds dear
Will keep it ever-more enthralled,
Bound surely year on year.

A Farmer's Diary

The Twin Calves.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I GOT up quite early, to see a friend off on a train trip. As I drove slowly homeward, about five in the morning, I saw that a former neighbor of mine had a light in his stable. I knew he seldom started to work so early, and thought he might have a sick cow or horse, so I stopped my car by the barn bridge, and followed the feeble lantern beams until I reached the cow stable door. Here I heard the low mooing of a cow, and the rustle of straw. I rapped, and then opened the door. There before me were two wobbly Holstein calves, white and black, just the living image of their mother. The farmer sat upon a low cross beam, smiling broadly.

"What d'ye think of them?" he questioned. "I've been up darn near the whole night. I made the path deeper between the house and barn—but d'ye know, I believe it's worth it. Not many twins like them!"

He got up and put his broad hand across one straight back. "This'n's a heifer, and the other's a bouncing boy. If I'd a knowed this last evening I couldn't ha' slept, anyway."

"Yep, they've took nourishment twice already," and he watched with pride as old Daisy licked their soft sleek coats, from head to tail. Occasionally she mooed, as sweet and affectionately as a lullaby. The little ones would wobble a few steps away, and she would follow, mooing, much concerned.

"That heifer calf 'll be registered as soon as possible," my neighbor said. "Daisy's grandmother held the record for butter fat at the Chicago exposition, and her sire was grand champion. That rascal comes from good stock. Look at that udder! I'll have to milk her while the calves is on. She does her best when I milk her three times a day."

He stroked Daisy's flank and face as she turned toward him, and spoke gentle words to her. There was affection there, and the poor, weary animal understood.

He walked with me to the car, the dim lantern in his hand. He was still nervous, but smiling contentedly. "Goodby," he said, as I drove away. "Come again when I'm not so busy as I was tonight."

INVENTS TRAIN SLEEPING AID

Woman Designs Unusual Gadgets; Corsets Start Fortune.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—In her 66 years, Mrs. Sarah L. Gossard has invented things ranging from a corset to a dirigible. The dirigible is still in the blueprint stage, but the front-lace corsets she designed 25 years ago were the opening door to a fortune.

Her inventions include a portable shower bath, a permanent wave machine and a rubber figure for the study of anatomy in medical schools. One of her latest devices is a sleeping bag for passengers who must spend the night in a railroad day coach. It contains a cushion which bridges the gap between the seats.

Orchid Display Includes 5,000 Unusual Types

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Braving St. Louis smoke and fog, approximately 5,000 orchids of more varieties than can be found in the South American jungles are on display at Shaw's garden.

In opening the exhibit, botanical garden officials expected they would have to replace specimens frequently and planned to bring fresh flowers from the nursery at Gray's Summit, Mo. They said a heavy smoke or fog might end the display of the delicate treasures prematurely.

An estimate of the value of the display could not be made, garden heads explained, because most of the varieties are not sold commercially. Many of them were developed by botanists at the garden.

One exhibit is the white "Lady of the Night" orchid from Panama, a highly fragrant variety. However, it gives off its fragrance only at night—missed by visitors since the exhibition closes at 5 p. m. daily.

ITALIANS MAKE ENTERTAINMENT PENNIES COUNT

Per Capita Spending in Year for Amusement 85 Cents, Statistics Show.

(By United Press)

ROME—Statistics reveal that the average Italian spends only 85 cents annually for amusements.

In all Italy approximately $38,545,000 during 1937 went for all sorts of entertainment ranging from dog racing to puppet shows.

Preferred entertainment was the cinema, costing each Italian 58 cents, two-thirds of his total amusement expenditure for the year.

Italy's 4,156 moving picture theaters (one for every 10,000 inhabitants) had a gross receipt of $26,250,000.

Movie houses did their best in Milan, where $3,500,000 were spent, followed by Rome with $2,850,000. Both cities have a population exceeding a million, though Milan is smaller.

Opera Second to Movies.

Theater-goers in all spent $11,150,000, giving opera a preference over all other forms of theatrical amusement. Italian opera houses took in $4,100,000, as against the legitimate theaters' $3,600,000.

Musical comedies earned half as much as the legitimate theater and vaudeville, which is staging a comeback, half as much as musical comedies.

The sum for operetta was $350,000 and $300,000 for concerts, while puppet shows, which are shown in regular theaters for the children throughout Italy, took in $70,000. The latter figure is more than double that for professional speakers, who did not enjoy great popularity, with only $30,000.

For sporting events Italians spent $1,545,000, the national sport, soccer, receiving 72.9 per cent of the total.

Boxing matches, which usually are held in small theaters, took in $94,785, while $70,000 were spent on bicycle racing.

More than twice as much was spent for automobile and motorcycle races than for the sport of kings, the former taking in $100,000. Horse racing, steeplechases and trotting racing accounted for only $50,000.

Dog racing fans spent $5,000 to see greyhounds and whippets chase a white rabbit around a track.

Golf, a new Italian sport, cost players $2,400, while fencing, a traditional Italian sport, had only $500 devoted to it.

Rugby, which has been played in Italy for the last 10 years, does not even figure since its number of fans is limited, Italians preferring soccer to the English equivalent of American football.

MILLERSBURG—Funeral services were held today at the Hunter funeral home for Mrs. Mary B. Logsdon, 78, who died at her home here following a lingering illness. Rev. D. W. Haynes, pastor of First Presbyterian church, officiated and burial was in the Oak Hill cemetery here.

GALION—When the 1939 auto license tags went on sale Wednesday morning at the Galion Automobile club, Harvey Huy, local dairymon, was the first to make a purchase.

Book of the Week

"East of Eden," by I. J. Singer; (Knopf: $2.50.)

EAST OF EDEN" is one of the most bitter novels the season has produced so far, yet it is not without warmth. It is by I. J. Singer, the Polish Talmudic student who abandoned his Polish rabbinical school for journalism and later came to America. Singer had written several books before he emigrated. He was first picked up by the New York intelligentsia in 1933, when a play of his called "Yoshe Kalb" was produced by the Yiddish Art Theater, and astonished everybody, including its author, by running for 10 months.

"The Brothers Ashkenazi" followed "Yoshe Kalb." It is a novel which has had a great deal of success in the English translation, and has been dramatized as well. After a book of short pieces, Singer produced "East of Eden." It may not be comparable to Tolstoy's "War and Peace" as Willam McFee felt "The Brothers Oshkenazi" was, but it is for this reader a far more readable novel.

Very briefly, this is the story of "East of Eden":

A young Jew named Nachman Ritter, son of Reb Mattes the peddler, was to become a rabbi, although the plan taxed the resources of his family very heavily. But the family was forced to move to Warsaw from its home village, and Nachman had, as a consequence, to apprentice himself to a baker. The war took Nachman's father, caused his sister to marry the baker, sent another sister to the streets, and led Nachman to meet Hannah.

And Hannah was the reason for the shy, rather ugly Nachman's knowing Comrade Daniel, an apostle of Marxism whose elegance of manner and language won over Nachman, used as he was to the harsh side of living. Singer traces Nachman through his adventures in spreading the Marxian gospel, and the successive defeats his excessive zeal brought him. He looked eastward to Russia, where already the things he preached had been achieved; finally he went to Russia. Singer has managed the story of Nachman's inevitable disillusionment with astonishing skill. In Russia there were precisely the same frustrations, the same futilities.

There is no need to consider the implications—the communists will disagree with them, the others will agree, quite likely. The important thing is that "East of Eden" is a novel, not propaganda exclusively. —By J. S.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

CHAPTER IX

AT FIRST sight of Fred Sanders, her prospective employer, Lona felt reassured. He was tall and stooped, even behind a desk. He had a quick, nervous manner, and piercing blue eyes. But he was not a Hardy. A sigh of relief shook her as she realized that. Crochety and hard to please, probably, but always, she felt, he would remain impersonal.

Her first impression proved the correct one. He scanned her card from the agency and the letter she had from Ardmore's, looked her over briefly, asked a piercing question or two, and then let his troubled blue eyes flash back to his work-strewn desk.

"The pay will be $12 a week," he told her. "Not much, I realize, but in these times—" He shrugged. "Barney, here," with a nod at the grinning office boy, "will show you where to put your things if you care to stay."

If she cared to stay! Lona could have laughed aloud, danced, done any crazy outrageous thing, instead of hanging her jacket and hat demurely in the cloak closet, and, smoothing her brown hair into a net frame for the eyes that looked back at her from the mirror with a dancing brightness she had thought departed from them long ago. If she cared to stay. At $12 a week. . . . Just a little more than half what she had received at Ardmore's, of course, but $12 a week, after—nothing. It seemed like riches!

Work again. A pad and pencil . . . dictation. . . "Yours of the 16th received and noted . . . be sure it was the 16th, Miss Ackerman, before you type it, please." The music of her own fingers clicking over the typewriter keys, . . . The smell of stamps. It all seemed incredible. Like a dream from which she must wake soon, she kept telling herself all through that first long morning. She would have to wake soon. It was too good to last. After yesterday, after all the yesterdays, to find this.

She was going to like it here, better than she had at Adrmore's, she had decided, long before it was lunch time. It was not so crowded. Besides Barney and herself, there were only the customers who trickled into see Mr. Sanders. There were no men clerks like Tim Evans back at Ardmore's, or no Hardys to bother her with their insinuations. And the work was light. Letters, mostly.

She could write to her father tonight, she planned, as she typed the first batch of dictation Sanders had given her. She had put off her weekly letter dreading to tell him of her change of address. It had been increasingly difficult to write to him of late, in the cheerful, happy note she had determined to keep up. She was afraid he was beginning to suspect—too much.

"Are you sure you're all right, Lona?" he had written her, anxiously, only last week. "They tell me there's a depression on. It must be hard for a girl alone. If I could only be sure you were all right."

The pathos of that letter had cut her to the heart. Daddy, her daddy, who loved her so well, to be shut off from things like that. . . . She would have died rather than tell him, wittingly, of her plight. But despite the hours she spent trying to make her letters sound contented and prosperous, she was afraid he was able to read between the lines. It is hard to write convincingly of happiness when the heart is black with despair. But now! Now there would be real news!

"Happy days are here again," she found herself humming to the accompaniment of the clicking keys.

"I was there, too," Barney the office boy, informed her.

"Where?"

"Happy Days. Great show, wasn't it? Say, did you notice that third cutie from the left in the front row of the chorus? The one with the curly brown hair and the pretty legs? You look just like her. Dija know that? Thought you was her when you walked in here this morning. Honest to gawsh!"

He edged closer and Lona laughed. She had been friendly with the office boy at Ardmore's, too, she remembered. He was the only one she dared be free with.

"Chew?" Barney asked, sliding a package of gum across her desk, placatingly. "Most girls do."

"Thanks," she answered him, gravely, and then laughed again. It was so good to be working. To belong somewhere. To be able to plan. To know there was a payday coming.

Her first concern must be to pay back Jim Claridge the money he had given her, she decided, as she settled for the long street car ride to her home that evening. And thee there would be clothes. Her heart speeded a little as she thought of being able to buy new clothes. It had been so long since she had dared even dream of things like that.

Looking about her at her fellow passengers and at the glimpses of shop windows along the way, it struck her that the styles had changed in the last six months. Skirts were fuller, hats were smaller. Odd, she'd never noticed. Her trusty blue suit seemed suddenly shabby beyond hope, even for work.

Gray, she planned. A new gray coat, with one of the tiny veiled hats. Jim Claridge had pointed out to her a girl in gray last night with an admiring adjective. She remembered it now and her spirits fell a little. She must look like a waif to him. So shabby and forlorn. Like a hungry stray kitten who must be fed and cared for to stop its mewing.

She had promised to call him on the phone at Mrs. Peterman's when she arrived home from the office to tell him what luck she had had. So he could get her off his conscience, she thought, twirling the dial with wistful fingers.

He hadn't told her much about himself last night, but she had gathered enough to know that he was a rolling stone. He had spoken casually of half a dozen cities that were to her only names. And in each one some waif like herself had probably fastened upon him. She had felt a little guilty qualm at the back of her mind all day when she thought of what a bother she must be proving to him.

But his voice, when it came to her finally, over the wire, did not sound bothered.

"Had your dinner, girl?" he asked, in his husky drawl. Leona liked his way of calling her girl. He rolled it, somehow.

"You must think I'm always hungry," she told him.

"I can talk better over a table," he came back, half apologetically. "I've been waiting for you to call. Thought maybe you'd like to sample another restaurant with me."

"But I've eaten."

"Oh!" He sounded disappointed. "I thought you'd wait. . . . Say, listen!" His tone brightened. "There's a gay looking place close here with an orchestra that sounds hot to me. How about watching me eat and then doing a little dancing, if you're not too tired?"

"Tired!" Lona laughed. Tired, when she was used to tramping pavements. The place he meant must be Danceland. She, herself, had often listened to the entrancing strains coming from its interior when she had lived at Mrs. Peterman's. Listened enviously, because she never dared to go inside. "I—really, I—" She hesitated. "I haven't any clothes." She wanted to cry at him. "You'd be ashamed of me—"

"It's too hot to dance," she said. And then, fearful that he might take her at her word and think she didn't want to see him again, "I'd like to—just take a walk," she invited.

• • •

He was bare-headed when she met him on the rickety boarding house porch a half hour later, bareheaded and smiling.

"How did you know I don't really like to dance?" he asked her, approvingly.

"But I didn't," Lona began, and then stopped to study his tall, lean figure as if she were, somehow, seeing him for the first time. Funny, she found herself thinking, it was just like the styles. He looked different, now that things were beginning to matter to her again. He wouldn't like dancing. She could see that now. There was something too ruggedly masculine about him to fit into a crowded dance floor. Something too suggestive of open spaces and silences.

"Tell me something about yourself," she prompted him, as he lit a cigaret beside her in the dusk.

He smiled down at her, then, the little crooked half smile she was beginning to watch for in him. "You're so much more interesting," he told her. "I'd rather talk about —you." His drawl was undisturbed, but somehow, she got the impression that something within him had leaped on guard before her curiosity. As if he didn't want her to know much about him. . . . She looked at him with new interest in the half light and wondered. All of the men she knew had been more than ready to talk about themselves.

BUTTE, Mont. —(AP)— A stray, dejected little black-and-white fox terrier slunk into the room of George Needy, police radio broadcaster who was busy at his microphone.

Needy paused for breath and the dog yelped into the mike. A newspaper reporter wrote a story about the yelp that was heard 'round the police radio system and the dog's owner read it. He hurried to police headquarters to claim his pup.

HELP DOCTOR TO BUILD NEW HOME

Patients Contribute Labor To Construct Dwelling.

LEMON GROVE, Calif.—(AP)— After six years of an unusual debt-payment system, Dr. Ebon B. McGregor has moved into a substantial two-story dwelling.

Unable to collect his bills in the worst of the depression, the physician wrote some 50 patients suggesting they contribute their labor in building him a house. Not one refused.

The "first shift" [illegible] plete the house, but [illegible] calls on delinquent patients gradually finished it.

Since he had fixed his professional fees, he insisted each worker fixed his own "wages" for construction work.

Mussolini Calls 1,000,000 Men for Military Duty

CROWDS SCAN CALL TO ARMS OF 5 CLASSES

Order Plastered on Buildings Where Throng Waits Outcome of Papal Election.

(By International News Service)

ROME — Premier Mussolini, who yesterday gave Italy the slogan, "ever more intense military preparations," moved swiftly today to convert his dictum into reality.

The premier unexpectedly called five military classes—those of 1915 to 1919 inclusive—to the colors. The five classes will total 1,000,000 men.

Manifestoes announcing the call were plastered on the walls of buildings along the Via Sistina. Large crowds—many of whom had been gathered in St. Peter's square awaiting outcome of the first ballot of the conclave of cardinals for election of a new pope—gathered in front of the manifestoes, staring at them in silence.

Get New Exams.

Men previously rejected for military service because of short stature were ordered to present themselves again for examination.

The manifesto was headed in large black type: "A call to arms."

It ordered all men born in the years mentioned to report to their regiments.

Mussolini previously called four different classes—those of 1895, 1901, 1902 and 1903—but most of the components of these groups were discharged, leaving under arms only about 60,000 members of the classes of 1901 to 1902 and about 60,000 members of the other two classes.

The classes of 1918 and 1919 called up today comprise the normal conscript classes which are called to the colors at this time each year.

In view of these facts, Mussolini's mobilization move is considered more a preparatory step than an indication of any immediate emergency.

These military preparations, following so closely upon the slogan given the nation by Il Duce yesterday, clearly indicated Mussolini's determination to be ready to back up an anticipated joint Italo-German demand for redistribution of the world's colonial wealth.

Davey Attorneys Seeking Dismissal of Bradley's Suit

COLUMBUS — (INS) — A motion asking dismissal of Lee Bradley's $500,000 damage suit against former Governor Martin L. Davey and General Motors Corp. was on file today in Franklin county common pleas court.

The petition, filed by attorneys for Davey, requested that the action be dropped because Bradley, self-styled "contact man" for the former Democratic chief executive, had disobeyed an order to appear at a deposition hearing last week.

Meanwhile William B. Bartels, attorney for Bradley, declared he intended to file a counter motion for dismissal of Davey's petition with Judge Robert P. Duncan tomorrow or Saturday.

In his damage suit Bradley charges he was falsely arrested last year on a perjury charge in Cleveland after he had testified before a senate investigating committee.

Fires 200 After Court's Strike Decision

Up and Down THE STREET

When Probate Judge C. J. Anderson went to Texas about two weeks ago he hoped to get rid of a severe cold and to leave the cold weather behind. But he accomplished neither, he said on a postcard to his deputies in probate court. "It's been cold and rainy ever since we left, and I still have my cold, so we're heading for home," he wrote. The card was mailed from Texarkana, Tex. Mrs. Anderson accompanied him on the trip.

From Broadway comes word of Lois Jessen, former Mansfield girl who left here more than 15 years ago for a stage career. Miss Jessen has the unusual task of being an understudy for four major characters in the new Paul Vincent Carroll comedy hit, "The White Steed" at the Broadhurst theater on Broadway. It is not unusual for an actress to understudy two characters, but four is a real chore. Miss Jessen once played a supporting role with Mae West in a stage play and appeared in a number of Broadway shows. Besides her work in "White Steed," she is appearing in the "Five Star Final" radio program. She is the daughter of Walter Jessen of Mansfield.

DEFIES 'MUZZLE'

Texas Pastor, Ripping Garner, Says He'll Resume Talks.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(UP)—The Rev. John Lovell planned today to continue his radio broadcasts despite his "muzzling" yesterday by Radio Station KTAT in the middle of an attack on Vice President John Nance Garner, a Texan and prospective presidential candidate for 1940.

Dr. Lovell planned to fill several radio engagements on other stations. His first scheduled was at Dublin, Tex., today.

In his sermon broadcast by Station KTAT yesterday, he deviated from his prepared text and apparently attempted to link Garner with Wall Street interests.

"As long as a bunch of bankers are for Mr. Garner, he will not make a good president," he said, and was cut off the air.

DIES IN SOUTH

Dr. T. Wallis Grose Was Former Mansfield Pastor.

Dr. T. Wallis Grose, 77, formerly pastor at First Methodist Episcopal church in this city, died at his winter home in St. Petersburg, Fla., yesterday.

Dr. Grose held the pastorate here 28 years ago, going to the Canton church from here. He had also filled pastorates in Springfield, Cleveland, Mansfield, Toledo, Wellington and LeRoy.

He maintained a summer home at Lakeside and kept in touch with Mansfield friends.

GET CONFESSION IN 2 SLAYINGS

Indiana Farm Hand Admits He Killed Husband, Wife, Police in Illinois Say.

(By International News Service)

VANDALIA, Ill. — Police announced today that Clifford Redmond, 27, had confessed the slaying of an Indiana farm couple after a drunken celebration of his birthday.

The young man, officers said denied charges, however, that he had also attacked the couple's 12-year-old daughter.

The victims of the slaying were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brand, for whom Redmond had worked as a fieldhand on their farm near Edinburg, Ind., for the past four years.

Redmond was seized yesterday near Vandalia, 200 miles from the scene of the crime, as Indiana and Illinois police spread a net for his capture.

According to the purported confession, Redmond said he had sold his hound dog for $5 and bought a supply of liquor to celebrate his birthday. He had returned to the Brand home late last night in a stupor, he said, and shot the couple with his .22 caliber rifle as they lay in bed asleep.

The Brand's daughter, Gloria, said she had heard the noise but was afraid to leave her room. Redmond, she said, came in a little later and attacked her.

TIBBETT WOULD SING 'BLUES' BUT CAN'T FACE 'SNOBS' YET

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Some day when Lawrence Tibbett, the baritone, is prepared to face the "musical snobs who will raise a howl," he will include jazz and "blues" numbers on his recital programs.

Here to appear with the Cincinnati symphony orchestra, Tibbett said in an interview today that some popular songs were worthy of the concert stage, but added:

"So far, I haven't had the courage to back up my convictions. I'm trying to figure out a way not to offend those subscribers who sit in the orchestra seats—who pay the bills—but are really indifferent to whether classical music is good or bad. There are musical snobs who will raise a howl and I'm not prepared to face them."

Tibbett said he had been toying with the idea as a "threat to the wealthy cash customers of the older generation and a promise to would-be concert goers of the younger generation."

The baritone recalled he was censured by critics after a recent radio concert in which he sang the "St. Louis Blues."

"Abuse from some of the critics was hot and heavy," Tibbett asserted, "but strangely, perhaps, there were no reprisals from the metropolitan opera."

He said an audience in Vienna cheered his singing of a popular number "The Glory Road."

"Some of my audience shriek when I sing it in America," he added.

ENDS OWN LIFE

David H. Shaffner Found Dead in Home of Son.

A verdict of suicide was returned today by Coroner Hugh Winbigler in the death of David Henry Shaffner, 79, who was found dead Wednesday night at the home of his son, E. M. Shaffner, Jackson township, with whom he made his home.

Believed to have been despondent because of ill health, Mr. Shaffner discharged a .22 caliber rifle into his mouth.

He was found shortly after 8:30 p. m. by his son and wife, who were visiting at the nearby home of their daughter, Mrs. Jessie Fidler, at the time Mr. Shaffner shot himself.

Mr. Shaffner was born in Franklin township, Feb. 3, 1860, and was a member of the Pleasant Valley Baptist church.

His son, two granddaughters, Miss Mae Irene Shaffner and Mrs. Fidler; one great-grandaughter, a brother, William Shaffner, Franklin township trustee, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Baird of Lancaster, survive.

Funeral services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 2 p. m. Saturday with Rev. Lee H. Ellington officiating. Burial will be in the Pleasant Valley cemetery.

RITES SET FOR G. S. HUMPHREY

Loudonville Man Stricken Here, To Be Buried Saturday.

LOUDONVILLE—Funeral services for Glenn G. Humphrey, 53, who died yesterday at Mansfield General hospital following an illness of four weeks, will be held here at 2 p. m. Saturday at the family home, and at 2:30 p. m. at the Methodist church with Rev. F. A. Hinman, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the Loudonville cemetery.

He is survived by his wife Minnie; a daughter, Mrs. William Love of Ashland; three sons, Stanley, a student at Ohio State university, and Lawrence and Wayne at home; a sister Mrs. J. L. Jarvis of Ashland; a brother Frank B. of Akron, and one grandchild. He was a member of the Besthesda Evangelical church north of here.

The body will be removed to the family home tonight.

LAFF-A-DAY

"I wonder if that air gun arrived that I ordered for Willie's birthday?"

JERSEY PLANT ORDERS OUSTER OF 'SIT-DOWNS'

Wholesale Discharges Made as U. S. Tribunal Upholds Right of Dismissals.

(By International News Service)

NEWARK, N. J.—Acting under authority of Monday's U. S. supreme court decision condemning sit-down strikes, the J. E. Margott company has discharged more than 200 employes who staged a two-day sit-down in the company's Newark plant and in addition ordered 10 of them arrested.

Allan Underhill, president, and Emanuel T. Schech, counsel, made it emphatically clear today that the wholesale firings were ordered under authority of the U. S. supreme court decision.

Based On Decision.

"We took our action as a result of the decision of the United States supreme court and we intend to take full advantage of that action," said Schech. "If the supreme court had declared that dismissal was not justified, we would not have taken any such action.

"It was the decision of the supreme court that impelled us to take our action. We now believe we have the full protection of that court."

Samuel L. Rothbard, counsel for the New Jersey CIO, said the dismissal notices, mailed soon after Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes handed down his decision in the Fansteel case Monday, will be ignored.

"We are not going to pay any attention to the letters," Rothbard said. "This is a strike and we are going to win it."

In the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation case, Justice Hughes upheld the right of that firm to dismiss employes who had staged a sit-down strike. He also denied the right of the national labor relations board to compel reinstatement of such strikers.

CHOSEN QUEEN

Ashland Girl to Head College May Day Celebration.

ASHLAND—Miss Inez Deardorff, a Junior at Ashland college and daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Deardorf of Ashland, today was named as May queen to reign over the annual May Day celebration at the college.

Miss Deardorff was chosen by popular vote of the student body from a field of 11 candidates from the Junior class, at an election held at the school yesterday.

An honor student, Miss Deardorff is active in various college activities and is considered as one of the most popular students on the Ashland campus. She is a member of the Footlight Dramatic club, the Y. W. C. A., Spanish club, Alpha Sigma Delta, Interpretative Art club, and a cheer leader. Her father is pastor of the Third Street Brethren church here.

LUTZ WARY OF G. O. P. RECEPTION

Wants To Make Sure Democrats Are Invited To Reception.

Democratic Representative Ralph Lutz, of Richland county, had to be assured that he would be welcome at the reception to be given house and senate members by Gov. Bricker in Columbus tonight before he would signify his intentions of attending.

The United Press reported that when the invitation to the reception at the executive mansion was announced in the house today, Lutz arose and inquired: "Does the invitation include Democrats?"

He was assured by Rep. J. H. McGregor, Republican, of Coshocton, that it did. Since Lutz cancelled his speech at the annual meeting of Richland county township trustees here today, it was believed that he had been encouraged by McGregor's reply.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Though Person's Voice Is Loud and Shrill He Needn't Be an Authority

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It is time to destroy the superstition that, because a man or a woman can shriek louder and a little less sharply than most human beings, that person's views on politics, economics or cultural topics deserve reporting in the papers and editorial discussion.

At the moment Beniamino Gigli, the Italian tenor, is maiming print in Italy and here with the observation that "an air of extortion and corruption" prevails in the United States. For that reason, among others, says he, he probably will not return here.

His remarks will earn Gigli certain credits with Mussolini, and their merits need not be argued. He speaks the truth, of course, and it may be said, further, that after long familiarity and patience with official sin, the people of this country have only recently heard of yet more loathesome and arrogant abuse of trust in the federal courts and in the local affairs of many cities.

For the first time in the nation's history, Americans are beginning to toy with the idea of capital punishment for thieving judges and for the alms-giving, church-going, honest-John type of political rascals whose careers are more dangerous to the people's liberties than Communist and Nazi-Bolshevik combined.

To be sure, such a criticism of this country comes with poor grace from a native and citizen of Italy, considering not only that Italy has been the main source from which we learned the arts of extortion and corruption, but considering also the character of the Fascist government itself.

However, the point to be considered is whether the fact of his being an operatic singer imparts special value to Gigli's views on matters beyond the opera. Obviously, it does not.

Singing, it should be kept in mind, is the lowest and most vulgar of the arts. Its masters, as a class are jealous, silly, childish, vain, petulant, grossly ill-mannered.

They know little beyond the roles, which they must learn as children, like Christmas recitations, and they are so overbearingly vain that when they are doing rotten work, and know it themselves, they sometimes stomp off, pouting and sulking, if a customer happens to yawn.

The ill manners and poor sportsmanship of operatic people probably can be traced to the fact that opera is native to a land which is notorious for its impudence, inconsiderateness and muckerism in all its relations with other nations—political, artistic and athletic.

Singing, of course, should be women's business. Feminine voices and the voices of little boys are light and birdlike, and suited to the art. It is not natural or happy art for males, and in no case is it a creative art, except to the extent that one singer emits a special gurgle, grunt, gasp or snuffle and calls that an original creation.

Operatic singers always have enjoyed more reverence or awe in the United States than they command in European countries, because few of us know anything about opera.

In Italy, if an opera singer is lousy—and they often are—the customers will pelt them with hunks of sausage and even knives and chairs, Italian manners and chivalry being, as suggested before, sharply inferior to the American, and Italian tolerance negligible.

Gigli may return if he likes, but it is hoped that, if he does so, he will not be quoted on any other topic than his knack, or, if you want to be generous, his art, of bawling and flouncing about a platform with lace on his cuffs and paint on his face, and bawling high tenor, at that.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Can't vouch for it yet, but there are signs that the Dead End Kids are undergoing a decided change in character—on and off the screen.

Off usually follows on, of course. The Great Lover who turns Sports King in his pictures begins to learn about sports in private life. The Snob who turns to rollicking comedy generally works at a Democratic Attitude for publicity's sake if nothing else. But the Dead Enders—maybe this is different.

Parents and school teachers have never liked the way the kids carried on, and they've been writing in. So the producers have tried to "soften" the boys in their films. In their new "Hell's Kitchen" the process is carried so far that the horrendous hoodlums, far from needing reformation, are instruments in the moral regeneration of a tough ex-gangster played by Stanley Fields. But that wouldn't have any effect on the lads' private lives, would it necessarily?

The Messrs. Huntz Hall, Bernard Punsley, Leo Gorcey, Gabriel Dell et als are becoming concerned about things. At first they gloried in those yarns about their kittenish misdeeds about the lot. Today they're alarmed when they read what hellions they're supposed to be.

"Just because we horse around a little," said one of the boys, "we don't want folks to get the wrong idea."

"Sure, most of us have been in show business long enough to put on a good act—but it was just an act," said another.

"Folks'll think we're awful obnoxious," said a third.

Thus the dawn of Social Consciousness, which proves that lightning can strike most any place.

Lightning strikes the local eateries, too, it seems. All I know is I go peacefully along thinking if I want to I can drop in at the Vendome and eat and star-gaze—and next thing I know the Vendome just ain't. How I know is I get a telegram saying a celestial named Ruby Foo has taken over, and would I please? The name is vaguely familiar—from New York, I guess—so I go, and pretty soon I meet Mr. Foo, and he doesn't look at all celestial, in fact he looks like Eddie Lewis who hailed from Boston and conquered New York, then eyed the Gold Coast and sampled its climate.

Net result, says Mr. Lewis, is that Mr. Foo is here to stay—his imported chefs having proved to their satisfaction that the local water is adequate for the concoction of a savory delight yclept Egg Roll. Mr. Foo's alter ego will remain in New York while Mr. Foo himself basks in the local glammer and I, heaven permitting, bask often in the Roll of the Egg.

While on such matters—did you ever pity the poor nightclub operator hereabouts? Did you ever consider his mournful outlook as he hears that some cinema celebrity is tossing a big party—at home?

Nor did I, until I talked to Monte Proser. Monte is a cheerful soul, with a cheerfulness born amid the bright lights of New York and as yet undampened by the fact that he acquired some time ago a night club in Hollywood. Hollywood is not the best of all possible places for a night club as the record of foldings and fatalities will show. Monte has La Conga, in the heart of Hollywood, and he has made it tick—so far.

But (says Monte) a night club hereabouts is dependent almost entirely on the favor of the movie crowd. When he hears that a movie star is giving a party—at home—he prepares for a good night's rest.

"Might as well close the doors that night," says he, "and hope nobody gives a party—at home—the next!"

Forced To Break Date

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a small job, after school, making about $3 or $4 a week, but give most of it to my mother as she has a hard time feeding all of us. My father doesn't support us and gets drunk when he does earn some money.

I have a girl friend and I think a great deal of her. Last week I wanted to take her to a movie and then have ice cream afterwards, and mother said she'd give me $1.50 for this treat. But it was just my luck that father got the money and went on a spree. And there was nothing left for me. We tried to borrow it from some of our neighbors, but everyone else was broke too. My mother felt awful that I had to let the girl down.

I was almost frantic, as I didn't even have the price of a telephone call. Finally I went to her house, but my excuse was so poor she wouldn't even listen, and said I had made a fool of her. All her folks thought she was going out with me, and then laughed at her when I didn't show up. Is there anything I can do to get back into her good graces again? She won't even speak to me.

HAL.

Why not send the girl a box of candy or a bunch of her favorite flowers? Then write her a letter saying you know things look pretty black, but that something very urgent detained you at home, something you couldn't possibly help. If the girl is at all worth while, she'll accept your explanation.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

"That question of my uncle, the king, 'What would you like best to be?' had the effect on me of a bludgeoning blow," Philip Vertizen said.

"I had not realized, until he spoke, that my elementary school days, and Rudolph's, were nearly over, and that from the end of them on we must be trained in our future professions.

There was that in the man's voice which told me how bitter had been that old frustration, when he had realized that though the same blood ran in his veins as in those of his cousin, their paths would lie apart when they should come to man's estate.

"But the thought of any profession, save one, was most distasteful to me," he went on, "and I knew that, because of my mother, that was anathema to my uncle. I will not deny to you that if Fate had played her cards right, I would have liked to be a king, with all the trappings that went with it. But knowing that to be impossible, there was but one other thing that interested me—the theater.

"My uncle was waiting for my answer, and one does not keep a king waiting. I did not know whether I should be banished from the court at once for speaking what was in my mind, but I knew that never would I have another opportunity to make the plea, and I spoke quickly.

"'May I tell you the truth?' I asked.

"It was the right approach. Courage always has appealed to the men of our line. My uncle looked at me keenly.

"'I will not promise to agree to your request,' he told me, 'but I will listen patiently to what you have to say.'

"'I want to study the theater,' I told him bluntly.

"He frowned portentously.

"'You mean you want to be an actor?' he demanded.

"'No!' I answered, 'only in so far as I need that profession to help me in my real aim. I want to produce and direct plays. I want to resurrect the dead bones of the theater and make them live again.'

"'It's been said before, Philip,' he said, and one of the few smiles I ever had seen on his face twisted the corners of his lips. 'But it's a laudable ambition. However, I do not see how you can enter it.'

"I knew better than to interrupt him, or to protest. He was thinking the matter over, and I fairly held my breath.

"'I will do this much for you,' he went on unexpectedly. 'Military service will, of course, be yours. You will be an officer of the guard detailed at the palace. You will also be groomed for a place in the government. But, if in addition to that you can find time of your own, without neglecting your other duties, I have no objection to your spending your own patrimony in studying—and reforming—the theater.'

"The ghost of a smile again touched his lips, and he rose, an indication that the audience was over.

"'Remember, the theater must not interfere with your other duties,' he warned me again.

"'I'll remember,' I promised, and then I left his presence and went away as happy as I could be in the face of the crushing knowledge that had just come to me from out the past.

"But youth is resilient, and as the years marched on, leaving my young boyhood behind. I began to be fairly happy. Rudolph was still my good comrade and my duties as officer of the guard at the castle were easy and pleasant. I was able to cope easily with my diplomatic studies, and I was able to devote much time and money to my theatrical work.

"'And then the Princess Olga came to Transvania.'"

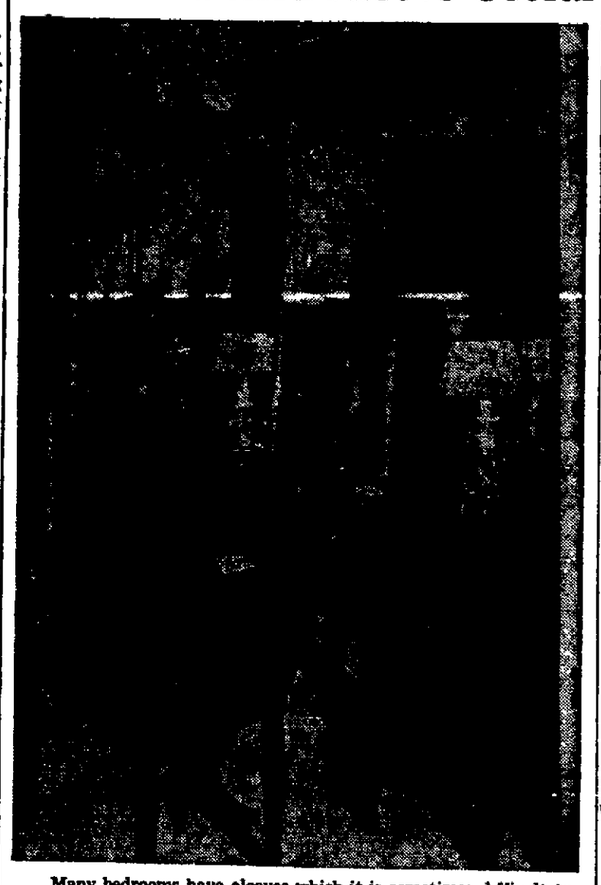
Mirror Paneled Alcove Useful



Many bedrooms have alcoves which it is sometimes difficult to make use of effectively. One of the most interesting treatments one can devise is to panel the alcove in mirrors of polished plate glass and thus convert it into a high point of glamour for a dressing table group. Illustrated here is a small alcove which became the focal point of interest in the bedroom through use of mirror panels. The cost of the above installation was approximately $85. It is permanent, requiring no redecorating from year to year.

Cheese Pasties.

Cheese Pasties are good. For filling you need four ounces grated cheese, small wineglass of cream, a hard-boiled egg and a few grains of cayenne. Chop the egg finely, beat the cream till thick, add the cheese and cayenne, spread over a piece of pastry. Then cover and bake for 10 minutes in a hot oven. A little celery salt makes a tasty flavoring.

Cheese, potatoes and eggs make an appetizing supper or lunch dish. Cut cold boiled potatoes, cold hard-boiled eggs and cheese into small pieces and arrange in layers on a buttered baking dish. Cover with milk and water. Sprinkle a few breadcrumbs on top, season well with salt and pepper, and bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes.

Cheese and Egg Toast is made by combining the yolks of two hard-boiled eggs with an ounce of butter and adding two ounces of grated cheddar cheese. Season with salt and cayenne to taste, and also, if liked, a little mustard. Cut some buttered toast into rounds or squares, spread the mixture thickly on them, place on a baking sheet, and let them get hot and slightly brown in a quick oven. Serve very hot.

Cheese Custard, tasty and nourishing, is easily prepared. Beat three eggs and stir in an ounce of grated cheese, season with a pinch of cayenne and add a scant quarter cup of cream. Pour this into buttered custard cups and bake slowly. Serve hot.

The backs of pictures should be inspected frequently. If the paper on the back of the picture is torn, a new piece should be fastened on, so that dust may not get into the picture.

Salads Add Zest To Meals

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

HERE are some pleasing Lenten dishes, delicious, healthful, satisfying salads, that are pleasing to the eye as well as the palate. All recipes given are for six servings.

Corn and Tomato Salad is made with one envelope plain, unflavored gelatine, one-half cup cold water, two cups whole kernel corn (or cream style, well drained), one-fourth cup shredded green corn, teaspoon minced onion, six large firm tomatoes and one teaspoon salt. Soften gelatine in cold water. Cut a slice from the top of each tomato and scoop out pulp with a spoon. Put pulp in saucepan with salt and onion and cook slowly for 10 minutes. Add gelatine and stir until dissolved, then rub through a strainer. Cool, and, when thickening, fold in corn and green pepper. Pour into tomato shells and chill. Serve with mayonnaise.

Prune with Tuna.

Prune and Tuna Fish Salad is decidedly different. It requires one envelope plain, unflavored gelatine, one-fourth cup cold water, three-fourths cup tuna fish, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-half cup celery, chopped or shredded cabbage, one-fourth cup cucumber pickle cut into small pieces and four cooked prunes cut into small pieces. Soften gelatine in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Add dissolved gelatine to mayonnaise and blend thoroughly. Mix tuna, which has been flaked, celery or cabbage, cucumber pickle, prunes, lemon juice and salt. Add mayonnaise and blend all together. Rinse individual molds or loaf pan in cold water. Fill with salad mixture and chill. Unmold, serve with additional mayonnaise, if desired.

Tomato with Crab Meat.

Tomato and Crab Meat Salad calls for one envelop plain, unflavored gelatine, two tablespoons cold water, two cups canned tomatoes, two whole cloves, one small onion, chopped, one-half teaspoon celery seed, teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, tablespoon lemon juice, one cup heavy cream, whipped, green peppers, chopped, and one small can of crab meat. Combine tomatoes, cloves, onion, celery seed, salt, sugar and pepper. Simmer 15 minutes. Strain and add lemon juice. Soften gelatine in cold water and add to hot tomato. Stir until dissolved. Cool, and when mixture begins to thicken beat with rotary beater until foamy. Fold in whipped cream, green pepper and crab meat which has been flaked. Pour into flat pan and chill. Cut into one and one-half inch cubes and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise or French dressing. Nice in individual molds, too.

Grand Dish.

Cheese Fondue is a grand dish, a favorite with gourmets. Ingredients include a cup of scalded milk, a cup of toft stale breadcrumbs, four ounces cream cheese cut into bits, salt, yolks of three eggs, whites of three eggs, tablespoon of butter, pepper. Mix the scalded milk with the well-beaten yolks, breadcrumbs and cheese. Fold in the stiffly-beaten whites, add the butter and the seasoning. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Welsh Rarebit is all very well, but what about Golden Buck? Just as nice and tasty! Grate or chop finely six ounces cheddar or Gruyere cheese. Put into a saucepan a small wineglass of water or cider, one-half ounce butter, then add the cheese, a good pinch of salt, a dash of cayenne and one-half teaspoon onion juice. Stir all with a wooden spoon over the fire until it becomes soft and creamy, then stir in the yolk of an egg. Pour the mixture hot over pieces of buttered toast placed in a hot dish and serve quickly.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

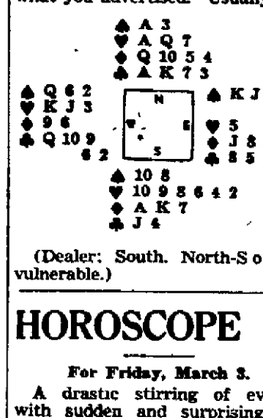
"The Authority on Authorities"

CHOOSE LESSER EVILS

If you have opened the bidding with a hand on which you later feel you really should have passed, you are likely to have a difficult problem put up to you, especially if your partner shows great power with some kind of a forcing bid. You have to choose between carrying on just as if your first bid was sound, and backing down because you don't quite possess what you advertised. Usually the lesser evil is in accepting the force he puts on you, hoping he has the slight bit of extra strength which will make up for your deficiency.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

It was sad to see what happened on this deal at one table of a tournament. South opened lightly with 1-Heart, West made what amounted to a semi-psychic 1-No trump, North doubled and East bid 2-Spades. When this reached North he called 3-Spades to proclaim his powerhouse. When East doubled, South decided to let this ride to his mate. North then called 4-Clubs and South, after long study, passed. It was down two after a lead of the heart 5.

At another table South got to 6-Hearts, doubled by West, and made a grand slam. West led the spade Q, and on the tenth trick, when South played his last heart, East had to choose between throwing off his spade K to make the 10 good for South, or one of his diamonds, which would build up an extra diamond trick in the dummy. It was a perfect "backward squeeze."

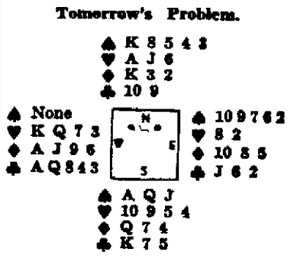
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

What natural bidding of this deal makes it clear to North and South that all of the spades held against them are in East's hand?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, March 3.

A drastic stirring of events, with sudden and surprising denouements, is presaged by this day's planetary operations. A breaking-up of long-stagnant or crystalized conditions, with thrilling reorientation of the life along new and unforeseen lines, may demand much sagacity, calm judgment and vigilance against snares, deception and intriguing or doubtful circumstances. In this, strangers and elders figure. Be careful in untried places and make decisions with forethought. Look before you leap, and all should flourish surprisingly.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very important year in which the breaking away from old obstacles and congestions may make way for very alluring and spectacular reorientation of the life and its major objectives. Be ready for the unexpected from strange sources, possibly perilous plots, intrigues and treachery. Elders, however, or old affiliations may be depended upon for profitable contacts. Be prudent and careful.

A child born on this day, although being deep, studious and industrious, with much sturdiness and dependability, may also have certain restless, erratic or radical traits which may lead to strange adventures. Yet, it may attain responsible and conspicuous public position by its inherent nobilities of character.

Floors squeak from various reasons: 1. Joist sizes too small or span too great. 2. The omission of subflooring or subflooring not laid diagonal to joints. 3. Finished floor nailings more than 16 inches apart. Most of the squeaking is done by floor boards working on the nails. If the underlying construction is sound, squeaking can be eliminated by face nailing. This should be done by a competent carpenter who will not mar the floor surface.

When milk has turned sour allow it to stand until it wheys, then turn into a cheese cloth bag and bank up to drain until dry. You will then have cottage cheese.

Give Poor Neck Some Beauty Care

By MME. QUI VIVE

Old Father Time is no friend to the beauty seeker. We can forgive him for a sprinkling of white threads in raven locks; often they're attractive. When he plants lines around your eyes we can call them laughing wrinkles, though no woman regards them as a laughing matter. But when he grabs us by the neck and wrings it, rumples it, puts tucks and pleats in it, we think the old gent is altogether too playful. He is as mean as all get out, and there is no health in him.

After your face creaming at the bedtime hour warm some heavy massage cream in the palms of your hands. You are going to feed that hungry looking neck—if you chance to have one of that kind and believe me it will lap up the sweet ungent. We take it for granted that it has had a good scouring with plenty of soap and water, which has left the flesh warm and glowing. Creams act quickly on a warm skin surface, are more quickly absorbed, the effect of the massage is more far reaching.

Tuck up your hair at the back, covering it with your wave net, so it won't pick up the lubricant. This is going to be a thorough job. The rear portion of the neck looks pretty scrubby this time of the year.

Begin the massage at the collar bones, rubbing along these little ridges. Then do up strokes with flattened fingers, one hand following the other. Grab yourself by the neck with one hand, picking up the forward flesh lightly. Don't pinch or roll; smooth and lift it outward. You're trying to awaken sluggish blood streams and harden underlying muscles.

Stroke from the shoulders to the ear lobes. Throw the head forward and do a kneading movement from the upper portion of the back to the nape line. Go over all the surface, front, sides and back with a brisk hammering of the finger tips. Wring a towel out of ice cold water, wrap around the neck. Do that five or six times.

Youth is Over!

MIDDLE age dawns—and with it perhaps lack of energy, poor appetite, acid indigestion, gassy, sour stomach, and belching. This should not be overlooked. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery stimulates the appetite and increases the flow of gastric juice, thus assisting in digestion, and you feel so much better after its use.

This tonic is made from a formula which the late Dr. R. V. Pierce found very effective when in active practice years ago. Men and women throughout the country have found it helpful. It should help you, too. Buy now of your druggist. New size, tabs. 50c.

Wife Preservers

This is the way one woman cleans elaborately carved gold picture frames: She applies a half-and-half mixture of denatured alcohol and household ammonia with a camel's hair brush. When the dirt is loosened, she uses the same brush with clear water, then shakes off the water and stands pictures on edge to dry.
